LONDON—Eve gave Adam an apricot—not an apple—in the Garden of Eden, says one of Britain's top botanists.

The Biblical belief in the apple as the fruit of temptation was challenged Monday by Dr. Tatham Whitehead, retired lecturer in botany at Bangor University in Wales.

"The apple is not a native of Mesopotamia," he said in an interview.

The Garden of Eden is reputed to have been in Mesopotamia.

"The only edible fruits they had there in the days of the Biblical story were the apricot and the quince."

"Since Adam is said to have eaten the fruit with which Eve tempted him, it certainly would not have been a quince (a hard, acid, pear-shaped fruit used as a preserve)."

"The simple deduction therefore is that the fruit Adam most likely ate was an apricot."

BALTIMORE—Rennie Marks went to court to make sure his name will be first on the voting machine. He officially adopted "Aabach" as his last name. He is a candidate for city council next spring. Names are listed alphabetically.

LA PAZ, Bolivia—Political circles here were in turmoil today because of the unprecedented challenge by a petite congresswoman to a leader of the government party to meet her in a duel to the death.

The executive committee of the governing National Revolutionary Movement (MNR) called an emergency meeting to discuss 33-year-old Rosa Leona Dolz's challenge to provincial MNR leader Armando Bascope, who expelled her from the party for "lack of discipline."

An estimated 450 women, with their children, went on a hunger strike in token support for the fiery, 4-foot-11-inch congresswoman.

Bascope is not known to have replied to Mrs. Dolz's challenge. She charged Monday night that he is afraid to meet her because he knows she is a crack shot.

"If he won't duel, I'll kill him anyway," she said.

TEHRAN, Iran—Tehran's police chief, Col. Abdolrah Vasiq, banned the Twist to teen-agers Monday after secret police raided a teen-ager Twist striptease party organized by a local movie house. Police said they consider the Twist "harmful to teen-agers."

HOLLYWOOD—"Would you believe it if I told you that I went outside and found Steve Allen sitting up in a tree and a chimpanzee seated in my flower garden?"

This and other complaints were aired Monday by residents in the neighborhood where comedian Allen tapes his television show.

A delegation of about 50 persons who live near the Steve Allen playhouse in the heart of Hollywood appeared before the city board of public works to complain about "noise, confusion, nuisance and blocking of traffic" late at night when part of the television show is taped outside the playhouse.

One resident complained she constantly had to clean up her lawn after the show, and objected to animals—such as horses, mules and even chimps—used in the show. The board bowed to the resident requests and appointed two members to "police" the taping sessions.

OXFORD, Eng.—Laurance Reed, 21, resigned Monday as treasurer of the all-male Oxford University Union after members defeated his campaign to win full membership for women students.

OAKVILLE, Ont.—Peter Strickland may keep his crocodiles, alligators and caymans, Oakville town council decided Monday night.

Mr. Strickland's neighbors in fashionable Falgarwood Hills subdivision of Oakville claimed the reptiles in his basement were terrorizing the neighborhood.

Last week council gave first reading to a bylaw that would prohibit the keeping "of certain animals, reptiles included." But councillors voted unanimously Monday night not to give it second reading.

Councillor McLean Anderson, who moved that the bylaw not be given second reading, said, "I am perturbed that this gentleman has been persecuted because he refused to accept conformity."

Mr. Strickland said last week he was fired from his job because "my neighbors' attitude placed such pressure on me I couldn't work."

He said he is preparing a book on the growth rate of the reptiles. They vary in length from a few inches to four feet and are kept in concrete pens in his basement.

... STOCKPILING

fluence purchasing for "the personal advantage of individuals, for electoral advantages in constituencies and for partisan advantage."

One government agency—referred to as "X" bought a certain size of tire for $24.44. A second government department designated "Y" purchased the same tire for $12.94.

PRICES VARY

Prices paid for fuel and lubricants varied. One department bought lubricating oil for $2 a gallon, another was paying 47 cents.

The commission was critical of the government for not utilizing bulk purchasing which could produce "significant savings." On automobiles it said, this could run to $500 or $600.

There was little or no control over warehouse stocks the commission found. About 40,000 people—the equivalent of one-third of Canada's total service personnel—were involved in the materials management function of the armed forces.

"For every three members of the armed forces, one person works in a materials management function, of whom 65 per cent are civilians," the commission reported.

The commission thought that the stocks carried by both defence and civilian departments were far too high. Of the civilian stockpiling the commission said:

"The average 6.3 months' stock carried by departments appears to be much too high."

Of defence stockpiling the commission said:

"Seventy-three per cent of the stocks on hand would exceed five years' requirements and, assuming no further purchases, 29 per cent of the present inventories would still be on hand at the end of 25 years."

ELIMINATE WASTE

The commission said it was aware that in some cases remaining stocks on hand were of the Second World War vintage and this contributed to over-stockpiling. But it emphasized that great savings could be made by proper inventory control and better ordering systems.

The conclusion was that defence production as the new purchasing force could do much towards eliminating waste.

The report said savings could be achieved too, if purchase forms, contracts and the like were standardized. Many warehouses across the country could be eliminated.

It also recommended that the Crown Assets Disposal Corporation be placed in the new purchasing department to handle sale of surplus items.

The commission also says the government has gone overboard on some aspects of its job in moving employees and materials around the country and the world.

It takes a particularly hard look at the RCAF's Air Transport Command.

The report charts the sharp growth of this air fleet, noting that its carrying capacity now may rival that of Trans-Canada Air Lines and that it flies more overseas miles than TCA.

"This large and growing volume of traffic and the high incidence of scheduled flying by the Air Transport Command probably are disturbing to commercial carriers, whether their interest be air, sea or land transportation."

Turning to shipping, the report says the government has about 600 vessels of "almost every conceivable kind, from an aircraft carrier and ice-breakers to sailing dinghies, outboard motorboats and canoes."

No Softening Of Castro's Stand-Mikoyan

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan said Monday night sharp differences over Cuba still exist between the United States and Russia. He indicated there was no softening of Fidel Castro's stand.

The Kremlin trouble-shooter talked to reporters after attending a dinner Acting Secretary-General U Thant gave for U.S. and Soviet negotiators on the Cuban crisis. Mikoyan returned to New York Monday after a 24-day visit to Havana.

U.S. Ambassador Aull E. Stevenson, who also attended the dinner, said he expects to resume discussions on Cuba Wednesday with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov. Stevenson said he expected the meeting to be "quite important."

Mikoyan said "very sharp questions" were discussed at the dinner with Stevenson and John J. McCloy, head of President Kennedy's Cuban co-ordinating committee.

"But there was no quarrelling," the Soviet leader said.

Mikoyan said the possibility of his going to Washington for a meeting with Kennedy was not discussed.

BACKS CASTRO PLAN

In his talk with reporters Mikoyan came out strongly for Castro's five-point demands, including U.S. withdrawal from Guantanamo naval base and an end to the U.S. economic boycott of Cuba. But Stevenson said the Castro demands were not discussed at the dinner.

Mikoyan also praised the Cuban government's offer Monday to allow UN inspection of Soviet withdrawal of offensive weapons from Cuba in return for the dismantling—under UN inspection—of bases in the United States, Puerto Rico and elsewhere from which anti-Castro exiles are operating against the Cuban regime.

The state department brushed off the Cuban proposal.

Thant was reported urging the United States and the Soviet Union to go before the Security Council with a joint statement closing out the current phase of the Cuban crisis.

DONALD GORDON

SC Demands CNR Chief Resign Post

OTTAWA (UPI)—Social Credit member of Parliament Gilles Grogire, today demanded the resignation of Canadian National Railways president Donald Gordon "in the general interest of the country."

Grogire, MP for Lapointe, Que., issued the demand in a letter made public after he was refused permission to read it into the record of the Commons sessional committee on railways.

While Grogire criticized the publicly-owned CNR for its approach to branch-line abandonment and acquisition of private trucking firms, he centred his attack on Gordon on the absence of a French-Canadian from the railway's 28 top officials.

"Questioned on that anomaly, Mr. Gordon demonstrated arrogance and showed his complete despicability regarding the bilingual side of Canada," Grogire charged. "His answers did not satisfy anybody" and indicated a certain sense of irresponsibility and incompetence that we cannot approve of from one of Canada's most senior officials.

"For these reasons we believe that it is in the general interest of the country that Mr. Gordon resign his duties and I ask today for his resignation."

$2 MILLION PLANE CRASH SUIT

'Liquidation' Plot Charged

NEW YORK (AP)—The husband of a plane crash victim filed a $2,000,000 suit Monday, charging a Cuban government agent planted a bomb aboard the aircraft to "liquidate" one of that government's henchmen.

The suit was filed by Arnaldo Ruiz of Manhattan, whose wife was killed Jan. 5, 1960, when a National Airlines plane crashed near Bolivia, N.C.

Ruiz had started suit against the airline and others earlier. He filed a motion Monday asking that the Republic of Cuba be added to the list of defendants.

Aaron J. Broder, his lawyer, said: "I have now been informed and believe that on or about Jan. 5, 1960, an agent of the Republic of Cuba was directed to place an explosive charge on this plane for the purpose of destroying it."

"This agent succeeded in placing this explosive charge or other combustible matter on the plane, causing it to crash."

The purpose, the lawyer added, "was the liquidation of a henchman of the Republic of Cuba."

The intended victim and the person charged with planting the bomb were not named. In all, 29 persons were killed.

What everyone
term insurance!

Term, or temporary, life insurance has many uses—but watch out for possible abuses.

Just as Fire Insurance pays only in the event of fire loss during the life of the policy, so Term Insurance pays only in the event of death before the term expires.

Often The Excelsior Life man will recommend Term Insurance—but only as a temporary coverage where the maximum amount of immediate protection is needed for the least amount of premium. And he endeavours to make certain that this temporary life insurance is converted into permanent personal policies as soon as the owner is able to do so.

There is no equity in Term Insurance which can carry the policy if a due date is missed, and none which builds future security for its owner.

We suggest that you talk to The Excelsior Life representative in your community. He has been selected and trained to help you with all your life insurance problems—and especially assist you to design your own "Blueprint for Security."

We Create New Nations

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Britain charged Monday that the Soviet Union, although posing as the friend of new countries, seeks to create "a chaos and confusion in the emergent nations."

Ambassador Sir Patrick Dean, defending Britain's colonial record, said the proof lies in the many newly-independent countries that formerly came under London's rule. He challenged Russia to show a similar record.

"Unlike the Soviet Union, we do not oppose nationalism," Dean told the United Nations General Assembly. "We create new nations."

"Our aim has been to ensure that the new nations are not weak and divided, but strong and stable; for we consider that they have an increasingly important role to play in world affairs and in the economic and social progress of mankind."

The British ambassador traced the history of British and Russian imperialism in both ancient and modern times and sought to show that Moscow has refused independence to its dependents. As an example he noted that territories occupied by Britain in the First World War were placed under League of Nations mandate after that war and those that had not achieved independence were placed under United Nations trusteeship after the Second World War.

"Tanganyika, the last of these, became independent last year," Dean said.

"What of the territories acquired by the Soviet Union during and since World War Two, notably Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, South Sakhalin and the Kuriles? Were these placed under trusteeship? Has information been transmitted on these territories under the UN charter?"

Pope John Extends 1963 Council Recess

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope John today extended the 1963 recess of the Roman Catholic ecumenical council by four months, telling the prelates to return in September instead of May from a recess that begins Dec. 8.

The Pope's decision for a nine-month break was announced at today's closed council session in St. Peter's Basilica where 2,200 bishops examined a thesis exploring possible roads toward Christian unity.

His decision was sought for several weeks by Latin American and missionary bishops.

The 81-year-old pontiff had announced two weeks ago that the council would recess Dec. 8, ending the initial phase that began with a solemn ceremony Oct. 11. At that time he set the period for the second phase from May 12 to June 29.

The change today meant that the cardinals, patriarchs, archbishops and bishops will not have to return to Rome until Sept. 8. There was no announcement when the second phase would end but sources said it would certainly not run beyond mid-December 1963.

More Action, Less Talk Big Need of Commons

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP)—Burdened by a growing backlog of national business, the Commons groped Monday for a way to speed its progress. Everybody appeared to agree on the need for less talk, but no action was taken.

When the Liberals proposed all-party co-operation to limit debates on individual subjects, Prime Minister Diefenbaker agreed and went further to suggest internal reforms that would include longer sitting hours and shorter question periods.

The opposition blamed lack of government leadership for slow progress. Mr. Diefenbaker denied this, accusing the opposition of "in-fighting" in search of an election.

Then two conditions were attached to party co-operation:

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) said that first, there should be "some frank answers" from the government on what he claimed were breaches of the law on the June import tariff surcharges—imposing them without parliamentary approval in the first place, and now saying information on cabinet-ordered tariff remissions is lacking. (See page 14.)

Lionel Chevrier (L—Montreal Laurier) said that before the Liberals agree to longer hours—such as morning sittings—they will want to see the government's legislative program laid out, especially long-term economic proposals and plans for a budget.

WANTS SOMETHING DONE

Social Credit Leader Thompson said the House should make better use of its present time, before adding to its hours. "We are willing to co-operate in any way just so long as we can get something done," he said.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the government has 29 pieces of legislation ready and its budget will be brought down earlier in the session than ever before—though he gave no date.

The debate came when the government asked for $449,473,276 in interim supply for December. This is one-twelfth—in some cases more—of the individual items in the current year's spending estimates.

These estimates for the current fiscal year were increased by $148,154,574 to a total of $6,196,369,134 Monday when Finance Minister Nowlan tabled supplementary spending plans in the House, at the same time seeking an immediate one-twelfth of the extra amount.

NONE APPROVED YET

Although the original estimates were brought in last April, none of them has yet been approved by Parliament. This is one of the biggest chores still facing the Commons after sitting two months of the current session.

Mr. Diefenbaker suggested the House could add eight or 10 hours a week to its work by sitting in the mornings and on Wednesday nights. It now sits 25½ hours a week, including five one-hour periods for private members' business.

Too much of the remaining time is taken up with questions to the government, the prime minister suggested. The questions ranged over 45 minutes or

We've got 40 horses that run on chicken feed

The Volkswagen will cruise all day at 72 miles per hour.

In the city, and on the highway, it averages 38 miles to a gallon of gas.

What's the secret? How does the Volkswagen do so much for so little?

We wish we had a good, simple answer.

Instead, there are a lot of reasons that explain the VW's amazing performance.

To begin with, the Volkswagen is lighter than conventional cars. Not only because it's compact, but because of the way it's designed.

For example: there is no radiator or plumbing. (We use air instead of water to cool the engine.)

The Volkswagen has no long, heavy drive shaft that runs from the front of the car to the back. The VW engine is in the rear where it gives direct power to the drive wheels. The weight of the engine provides better traction on ice and snow.

And the engine weighs less because it's made with magnesium. (Magnesium is one of the many products we buy in Canada.)

Take a look at the front of the car and you'll see how we've reduced wind resistance. Instead of a flat grill, like the bow of a barge, the Volkswagen is streamlined.

Enough talk. Your Volkswagen dealer has 40 horses all saddled up and ready for a test ride. (Don't be afraid to go for a good run. It costs us chicken feed.)

Mandate to Carry On

PRESIDENT DE GAULLE HAS won an unprecedented victory in the French elections, with his Union for a New Republic Party taking 233 seats—an unusually large number for a single party in France's multi-party politics—and some 30 additional members pledged to support de Gaulle's policies. No single party has ever had a majority in the 482-seat National Assembly, but the returns of the last two Sunday voting place the pro-de Gaulle in an unassailable position.

The significance of the voting goes far beyond the conventional victory of a government. It means that France has renewed its resort to a strong-man administration to guide it through current problems; it means the people have not yet forgotten the embarrassing frustration of the sterile, divided parliament which de Gaulle has since reduced to secondary executive importance. The results show, too, that French politics have become polarized—the middle has suffered at the expense of the extreme right and the extreme left. Thus both de Gaulle's supporters and the Communists showed marked gains in seats and popular votes, although the former are far in the lead.

In voting for de Gaulle's candidate the people reaffirmed the approval they gave last month in the "constitutional crisis." At that time he won support — although of a modified nature — in his referendum to choose the president by popular vote rather than by an electoral college. In its present mood, the electorate apparently prefers results to constitutional niceties, policies to politics.

The effects will not be confined to France. In giving de Gaulle a mandate to carry on, the voters have in effect indicated their preference for an independent French nuclear program; for a policy of full co-operation with West Germany; for a cohesiveness to Britain's application to join the Common Market; for a France-first, NATO-second disposition of French military forces.

These policies we can expect to be pursued with renewed vigor, and others of a similar flavor. The days of French hesitancy and paralysis, when initiative and programs were lost in fruitless parliamentary debate and a succession of hand-tied administrations, are gone. In their place France has established the form of leadership which through history it has called up to meet such dilemmas.

But strong-man government, no matter how benevolent and dedicated, is not an adequate alternative to a well balanced democratic two-party system. Many Frenchmen today wonder what or who will fill the vacuum when the 72-year-old de Gaulle eventually must go.

Time for a Change at the Library

PROPOSALS FOR A METROPOLITAN library system in Greater Victoria focus public attention on two major questions:

How can the books be conveyed to the readers most efficiently? And how can the service be most equitably financed?

Experience in the last year or two convinces the library authorities that the present access to books — and other services — is not adequate. This is revealed in reduced circulation figures for Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt. More than counterbalancing this trend has been a large increase in Victoria circulation.

Hence the deduction by the library people that consideration has to be given now to more effective outlets in the municipalities.

Miss Rose Vainstein, who has given the question-intensive study, proposes that books and services be made more easily available by the eventual establishment of branch libraries suitably located. As a start she suggests rented space in the Esquimalt Shopping Plaza to cover the eastern municipality. In Saanich and Oak Bay, location of a branch would be delayed until expanded bookmobile service indicated the site most desirable.

The circulation figures for the different regions reflect, in the opinion of the authorities, increased local shopping area patronage. People in the outlying districts are not coming to town as frequently to buy their provisions. As a result they do not come to the library in the ordinary course of their shopping expeditions.

Spotlight on Suppression

THIS COMMUNITY, WHICH carries a small scar from the "book burning" episode of nine years ago, may note with sympathy efforts by educators in different parts of the United States to fight extremists who are attacking school textbooks on political grounds.

The effective way to handle such problems, says Mr. Roy E. Simpson, California superintendent of schools, is to expose the extremists and their activities to the most glaring publicity possible.

His advice follows a campaign by a California group to ban from the schools a literature textbook because it contains a section by Carl Sandburg, whom the extremists label a Communist front.

"The only effective means of combat," says Mr. Simpson, "is the development of glaring publicity which will awaken the sensible people of our communities. There is considerable evidence that our real problem is that of apathy and indifference, misinformation and lack of information.

"There is also," he adds, "a general unawareness, even among informed people, that the movement leading these attacks is not merely conservative but is basically authoritarian."

The school superintendent has confined his remarks to a situation existing in California. It suggests the proper approach to any force seeking to ban books. That approach is to turn the spotlight full on the persons involved, so that the public can see who's trying to suppress what, and for what purpose.

Stress on Liberal Education

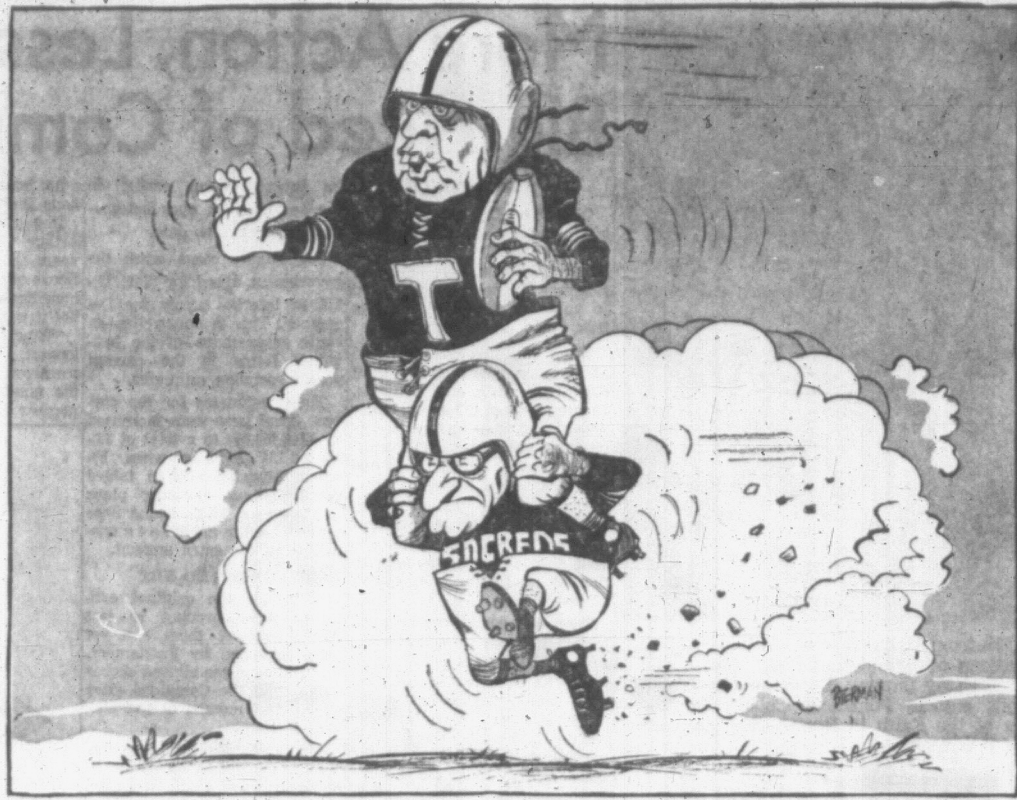

AS AN INEVITABLE REFLEX to western concentration on scientific studies following Russia's production of the Sputniks, North American universities are demonstrating a renewed concern for the broad liberal education.

The modern world demands highly specialized talents. Experts in particular fields of physics have emphasized that point as they have met some of the challenges of space. But along with this high degree of specialization must come an education in the humanities adequate to provide the type of balanced society desired in the democracies.

The accent is once more being placed on the university's obligation "to produce humane and civilized citizens, fully aware of the main threads of their culture," as Dean Franklin L. Ford of Harvard's Faculty of Arts and Sciences puts it.

Here is a realization that humanity, educated humanity, today needs to know not only that a spacecraft will take the required direction intended for it, but that society will know also where society is going. The problem is recognized. But recognition does not provide the answer, particularly in a world where knowledge apparently grows faster than man's capacity to keep up with it.

Hutchison, Victoria Daily Times.

OTTAWA AND JUNGLE LAW

No Serious Risk of a Glut of Cabbages

THE quiet philosophic mind, if such a one is left in Canada after this year's storms, must ask itself not what the politicians of Ottawa are struggling about but why they struggle so hard. It may be thought that the kind of convulsion that now grips Parliament is not in human nature but is a superhuman collision of noble abstract principles. On the contrary, human nature alone, hot and panting, is at the bottom of it all — human nature that craves power only second to the needs of the flesh and not always second. What we see now in Canada has been seen in all places and ages, the lust of one man to control others for his own gratification but always under the illusion that he is doing something unselfish and mighty fine.

Political parties, John W. Dufosse once wrote, "are not, as their philosophers claim, servants of the state operating in its service; their real desire is the mastery of the state and the brooding of no opposition or rivalship."

Ottawa today offers a classic illustration of the old jungle law. But perhaps Dufosse didn't go far enough.

Hutchison

What is it that impels men to desire office at a time when office can mean nothing but misery? It is not money, we may be sure. All but the dumbest men in Parliament could make more money outside it.

Fame? Then? According to Milton, "fame is the spur" and "the last infirmity of noble minds" that makes men "scorn delights and live laborious days" — a prophetic and accurate description of parliamentary life in our time.

But fame is not the whole spur by any means. Some of the most powerful men in Ottawa are unknown to the public and intend to remain so. For them fame is nothing, power everything. Let the actors live on applause (or abuse which is better than no fame at all) while the anonymous men of power enjoy it all the more for its secrecy.

They are secret, non-alcoholic drinkers further gone in addition than the most hopeless dipsomaniac. Wine was never so habit-forming as power.

If the public could see, behind the scenes, the fixers, brain trusters, speech writers, idea men and assorted string pullers, a revolution probably would follow. Actually there is no reason to be surprised or excited. All politics in all ages and civilizations are and must be the pursuit of power. That's what politics are about.

The pursuit takes different forms and contrives various disguises.

A few men, a very few, want power solely to serve the people, at least until they have attained it, when they begin to identify the public welfare with their own. Quite honestly, they see themselves standing alone between society and disaster.

Make Any Sacrifice

Most politicians are not so fully dedicated and self-hypnotized. They want power candidly for the sake of power because they enjoy its exercise and will make any sacrifice of their own wealth, health and happiness to possess it.

Before any citizen condemns them let him remember that without the urge to power we should have no government at all. If no man would accept power we should live in anarchy. Let the citizen reflect also that the instinct of power is not confined to politics where it is visible but animates all normal men whose lives are invisible.

From the little man who bullies his wife (or, more likely, vice versa) all the way up the scale to the prime minister the human creature is driven by the appetite for power of some sort over his fellows and his environment. If he were not, our species could never have left the caves.

The animals lack that instinct and desire strength only to eat their competitors and thus are incapable of civilization. If we wish to be civilized we must tolerate power and owe our thanks to men who will assume it at the lonely, windswept peak. (But let our thanks to them be moderate and restrained or they will become intolerable.)

There is always a price to pay for power, a price larger than the loss of money, comfort and domestic felicity.

Thomas Jefferson held that "when ever a man has cast a longing eye on offices a rottenness begins in his conduct." As the holder of the supreme American office he should have known. And Acton's dictum that all power tends to corrupt while absolute power corrupts absolutely has never been denied in all human experience.

More Direct Application

These warnings apply to our age more directly than they apply to any other because, for the first time, a handful of powerful men can destroy our species. The danger of corruption must be proportionate to that power.

No need, however, to pity Mr. Khrushchev and men like him. No need to pity any politician for if he doesn't enjoy power he can retire, like the wiser Roman emperors, and grow cabbages. The risk of a general desertion and a glut of cabbages is not serious.

For reasons that the nameless voter cannot comprehend, every politician revels in his tiny parcel of power and never ceases to enlarge it if he can. He clings like some naked man in a shipwreck to any floating spar of office. The sinking mariner grasps at a waterlogged privy councillorship; the flotsam of a Senate chair or, if nothing better comes his way, to a sodden paragraph in Hansard that no one will ever read.

And as the waves close over his head you will hear the same invariable piercing cry through the gale. "Mr. Speaker!" shouts the drowning man and then is heard no more. He has been ruled out of order.

In the Opinion of Our Correspondents

Parachuting

A few who flew before the days of parachutes joined with a large crowd in admiration of the precision drops in Beacon Hill Park Saturday week.

The flying personnel of the local club deserved high praise for their display when two men dropped from 2,500 feet 10 minutes apart, in varying winds, yet landed within a few feet in the target area. Minutes before, two test drops landed a little to leeward out of sight.

Perhaps one of these young experts will explain the use of these new "slits" in the canopy so that the public may learn how and why a falling man in mid-air manipulates the shrouds.

Tin Hat Immaterial

The issue of the Times, dated Nov. 17, contains a letter from P. M. Chiswell which refers to the ignorance of the designer of the War Memorial at Ypres, pictured on Weekend Magazine's cover of Nov. 10.

It may be of interest to him and others to know that the Canadian government, after the First World War, held a competition open to sculptors, architects, artists, in fact to all-comers, for a design of eight or more memorials, to cost not more than a limited sum, the said memorials to be erected to honor those Canadians who fell on the various fields of battle in which they took part.

This competition was open to Canadians only and was won by F. Chapman Clemensha, who like the writer was one of the founders of the Saskatchewan Society of Architects which received its charter from the Saskatchewan government in 1911.

The repetition of the design in its various locations would make it readily recognizable as a Canadian monument.

Clemensha was among the first to volunteer and very probably at Ypres himself, so was well aware of the point raised by your correspondent, but both the Canadian government and he did not consider it necessary to alter the design to "Tin Hat" or no "Tin Hat" as the case might be, to satisfy your critic who evidently is more interested in "hats" than the design as a whole.

It is regrettable that the Times failed to mention the name of the author of this design, which embodies dignity, beauty and simplicity, and in my opinion, entitles Mr. Clemensha to a place among famous Canadians.

Preserve Strathcona Park

I wish to thank you for your splendid editorial and Arthur Mayes's articles on Strathcona Park.

However with all due respect to Mr. Mayes and Mr. Ronald Upward I cannot see that the Greater Victoria Water District and Strathcona Park are 'roughly parallel' situations. The whole purpose of the Water District is to maintain a pure water supply for the City of Victoria and any appearance of the watershed is incidental because the general public is not allowed access to it. On the other hand the main purpose in Strathcona Park is to maintain its present beauty and make the park accessible to the general public for hiking, fishing and camping.

Among the arguments that Mr. Hendry has posted for the lumber interests is one that I should like to question. He states that, "in spite of our very best endeavours, our descendants 200 years from now will never see the type of forest that now clothes the mountains of Strathcona Park." May I ask what kind of forest clothed the mountains 500 years ago before the present trees sprouted? Does Mr. Hendry think that Nature cannot look after herself if not touched by man?

Undoubtedly there will be differences of opinion even among ardent conservationists as to the best methods of preserving the park but I feel sure they will all agree on the necessity of excluding commercial interests.

"I MADE A TOUCHDOWN!"

From Our Files

Nov. 27, 1902 — Des Moines, Iowa: Two persons were fatally injured and six were seriously hurt when two street cars collided here today.

Nov. 27, 1942 — Windsor: One hundred male office workers were asked to return to their homes by an official of the strike-bound Ford Motor Company when pickets blocked their entry to the property.

WASHINGTON:

Pause That Represses

By JOSEPH ALSOP

THE Chinese Communist cease-fire on the Indian border is being more diversely interpreted, more contradictorily explained, than any major development of the last 16 years. To the list of explanations already offered, one more is worth adding, because it is favored by the ablest American experts on the affairs of the Communist bloc. These men suspect that the Soviets stopped the Chinese dead in their tracks, by threatening to withhold the Russian petroleum deliveries on which China still very heavily depends.

As yet, there is not a shred of factual evidence to support this theory, or any of the other prevalent theories either, for that matter. The theory of the Soviet experts is interesting, nonetheless — all the more so because of the marked resemblance between the strange cease-fire on the Indian border and the cease-fire at Quemoy in 1958, which the Russians certainly forced on the Chinese.

Whatever produced the Indian cease-fire, it completes what may be called the post-Cuba pause. To all intents and purposes, the Cuban affair itself has now been liquidated. The oratory at the UN still has to be got through, but that seems likely to be even more inconsequential than most UN oratory.

After-Effect

What has not been liquidated, however, is the political after-effect of the Cuban affair. The after-effect has been especially powerful, as might have been expected, in the Communist half of the world. In recent days, its power has been demonstrated at the Hungarian Communist Party Congress in Budapest.

Here the scenes of the Bulgarian party meeting in Sofia have been replayed, in the manner of an angry repeat of an angry Punch-and-Judy show.

A vicious attack on the "revisionist" policies of Nikita S. Khrushchev, was delivered by the Chinese delegate, Wu Hsiu-chuan. An even more vicious reply was made by the Hungarian party boss, Janos Kadar. The Chinese then walked out. The Congress is likely to end with further down-grading of potentially pro-Chinese Hungarian "Stalinists."

Another repeat of the Punch-and-Judy show is to be expected soon at the Czech Party Congress in Prague, where the official party paper, Ruda Pravo, has just come down hard on Khrushchev's side in the Sino-Soviet row.

Here, there may be considerable added drama, if there is any substance to the persistent reports from Warsaw of an oncoming thorough purge of Stalinists in the obstinately Stalinist Czech party.

In Moscow, meanwhile, the Central Committee meeting has ended with a significant decision to cut heavy industrial investment in favor of investments in agriculture, and to reorganize the whole economy on lines proposed by Khrushchev.

Open Break?

There was every indication that Khrushchev was "completely in the saddle" at this meeting, with no one to challenge him from any quarter. It remains to be seen whether Khrushchev in the saddle means an eventual open break between Moscow and Peking. That may come, but no one knows. What is apparent is that Khrushchev, with his home base secure, is hard at work picking up the post-Cuba pieces all over the rest of the Communist world.

The first stage of this process is the political tidy-up that is now in progress. Precisely because a setback has been experienced, discipline can no longer be tolerated. Hence, dissidents, open and potential, are being eliminated, in the European satellite parties, first of all.

Where this is possible, one may expect other Communist parties to be briskly tidied up later on. Even the Soviet party leadership may not be immune, over the long run.

What to do about China is clearly the central problem of this first stage. By the same token, what to do about Berlin is likely to be the central problem of the second stage, in which Khrushchev will have to decide how to adjust the broad lines of Soviet foreign policy in the light of the Cuban experience.

Berlin Decision

The Berlin decision may well be affected by the decision on China. For if Khrushchev dares to react to Peking's extreme provocations by an open break with the Chinese comrades, he may also dare, perhaps, to depart rather radically from other rigid attitudes of the past.

The entire process, of political tidying within the bloc and policy-adjustment beyond the bloc's borders, will not and cannot be swiftly completed. The present pause may therefore be expected to endure, with luck, for two, or three, or even four months. But in January, February, or March, President Kennedy and the other Western leaders will have to be ready for the end of the pause.

At that time, Khrushchev will have to move, either towards serious co-existence or renewed belligerence. He cannot stay indefinitely where he is now, or on dead centre; but none can now be sure which way he will go. (c) 1962 New York Herald Tribune Inc.

MARKED for READING

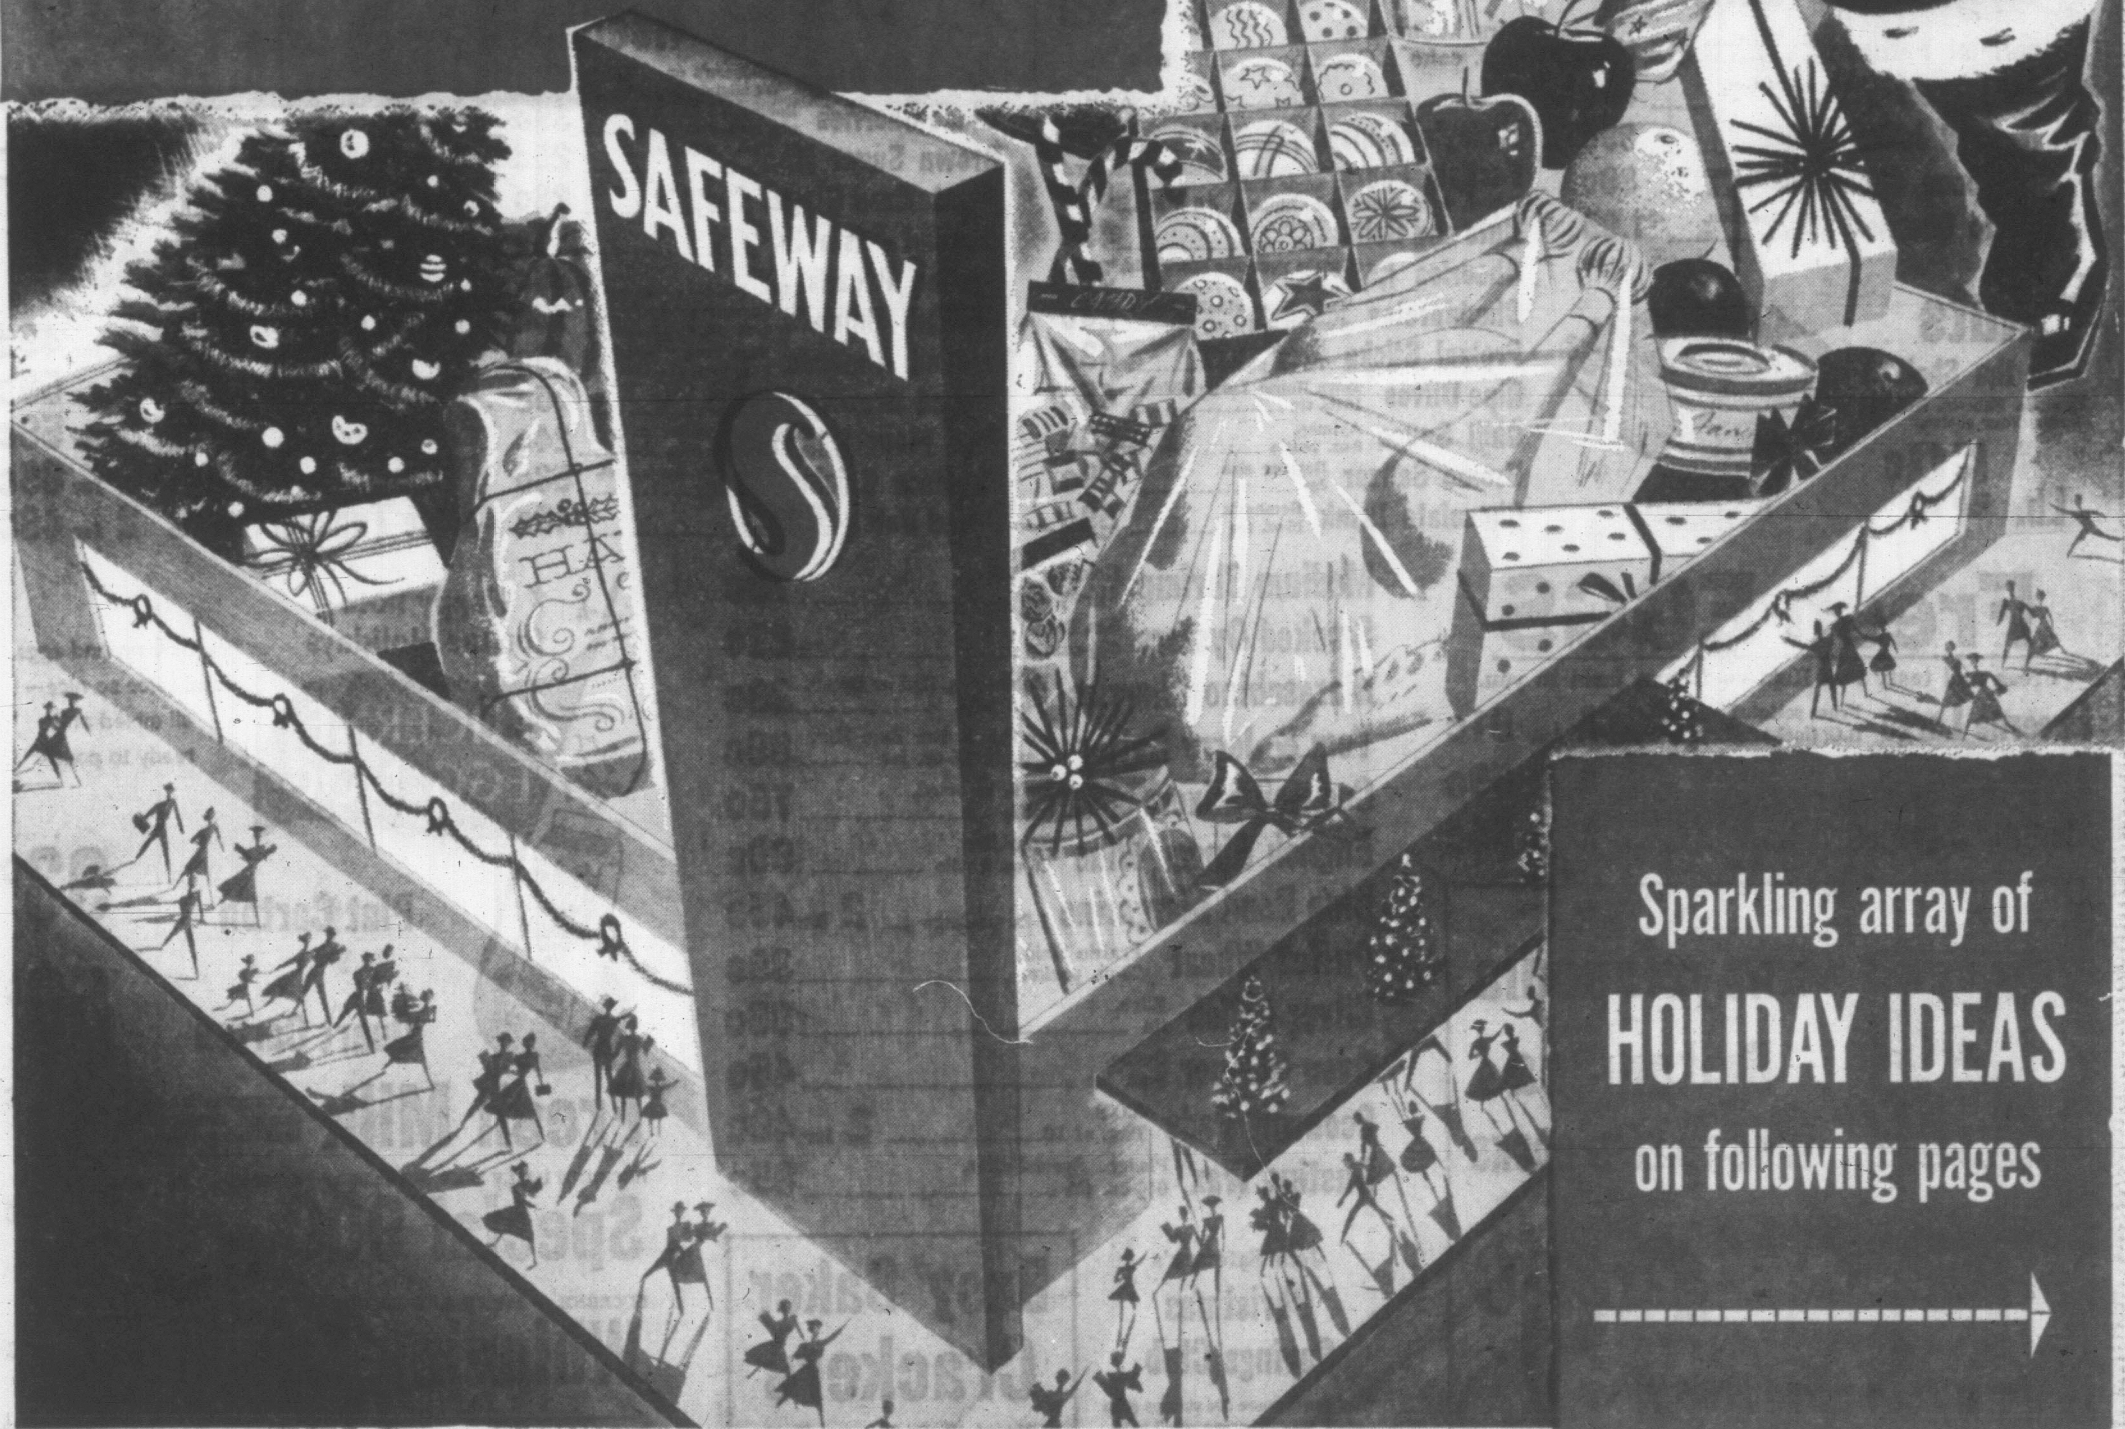

George Bernard Shaw's chief occupation was to stimulate thought, and he set you thinking even when he was wrong, as he frequently was, but he was always wrong in a great and magnificent manner. Your mind when you came into his company couldn't lie down and quietly rust; he compelled you to turn over your beliefs and furnish them afresh; you couldn't in his presence take yourself or your faith for granted; you had to know not only what you believed by why you believed it.

MURRAY HILL, N.J. (AP)—The communications satellite Telstar has developed difficulties in its command circuit, Bell Telephone Laboratories reported Monday.

After more than four months of continuously successful operation in space, the satellite refuses to take orders to turn its communication receiver and transmitter on and off.

The difficulties do not affect telemetry transmissions, which continue to operate properly, the spokesman added. Telemetry sends back reports on the amount of radiation in space the condition of the satellite and its electronic components, temperature readings and the effects of radiation on solar cells and transistors.

LONG, FULL LIFE

Rites Wednesday For George Grant

George Harold Grant, 87, veteran mining engineer, businessman and sportsman, died Sunday at his home, 480 Oliver Street, after an illness of four months.

Born in Nova Scotia, he spent his childhood at sea with his father, a shipowner-captain, his mother, and younger brother. By the time he was 11 years of age he had survived a mid-Atlantic mutiny, a shipwreck, and an attack by pirates off the China coast.

His father's ship was close to the Netherlands East Indies island of Krakatoa when it exploded Aug. 27, 1883, and he could remember the ship being covered with rock ash and pumice.

The family settled here in 1886, and built a home at Point Ellice. While canoeing on the Inner Harbor May 26, 1896, Mr. Grant saw the Point Ellice Bridge collapse under the weight of a loaded street car. The Grant home was used as a temporary hospital for survivors.

PRIME MINISTER He attended McMaster University in Hamilton, Ont., and Harvard, where he won his bachelor's and master's degrees. While at Harvard, he lived in the room vacated a few weeks earlier by W. L. Mackenzie King, and later recalled the incident in conversations with the former prime minister.

In 1906 he married Maude Chambers of Victoria. She accompanied him on his mining operations throughout the province, which continued until his semi-retirement in 1939.

Local sportsmen gave Mr. Grant credit for inventing the popular bucktail fly, but he said it was devised by his wife.

This is how he used to tell the story: "She asked my advice on tying a fly, then didn't follow it, but came up with this 'thing.' She used it on our next fishing trip and caught a basketful, while I got nothing."

He also was credited with importing — as a dealer — two of the first cars to the city. He sold one to Robert Dunsmuir and kept the other.

One son died in infancy and the second, Jack, died here in 1945. Mrs. Grant died in 1951.

Survivors are a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Margaret Grant, and two grandsons, Walter and Robert Grant, at 470 Oliver Street. Private funeral service will be held Wednesday.

Autos Swerved, Crashed, Witness Tells Hearing

A witness to a fatal crash on Esquimalt Road, Sept. 15, told a preliminary hearing in Esquimalt police court Monday that both cars swerved in trying to avoid a collision.

The head-on accident at Macaulay claimed the life of Mrs. Doris Bendall, mother of five children.

Charged with dangerous driving is RCMP Marine Constable Malcolm J. La Freniere, of the RCMP vessel Victoria, who has elected trial by judge and jury.

Witness Cete Kuor, 22, of 708 Suffolk, also said the green car in which La Freniere was the sole occupant, was traveling very fast on the wrong side of the road just before the crash.

She testified she was standing at the traffic lights at Head and Esquimalt and had seen both cars before the crash.

She said she heard the wheels "making a noise" before the impact.

Immediately she took off her high-heeled shoes to change into low heels, and ran to a nearby house to call police.

Lawrence Crosthwaite, then living at 961 Esquimalt, testified on hearing the crash he had rushed to the scene outside his house.

He said driver of the car in which Mrs. Bendall was riding, Miss Elizabeth Harrison, was pressed against the steering wheel and the horn was blowing.

der the dashboard in the front of the car and Kenneth Bendall, her husband, was on the floor in the back.

The engine of Const. La Freniere's car was racing after the crash, the court was told.

The preliminary hearing was adjourned to Wednesday morning to set a date for its resumption.

CITY ARTIST'S PAINTINGS IN DEMAND

NEW YORK (CP)—Canadian artist J. Fenwick Lansdowne has been asked to supplement his U.S. showing with another 20 paintings because of quick sales from the original 51, a spokesman for Kennedy Galleries said Monday.

Gallery salesman George Schriever said about two-thirds of the paintings already have been sold at prices ranging to a top of $400. The minimum is $150 and most sales have been in the $150-$200 bracket.

"We think all of them will be sold," Schriever said. Although the gallery had asked for 20 replacements, it is not sure of getting that many since it understands Lansdowne's bird studies also have been selling well in Canada.

PLAY WOODS FORWARD

On some shots, we want distance. On others, we want height. Still others should be kept low. As long as we have different goals for different shots, we'll have to play them differently.

Today's illustration, for instance, shows proper position for a drive with a wood club. Note that I play the ball directly in front of the inside of my left heel. The other woods are also played forward of centre.

We play wood shots forward of centre because the woods will sweep the ball off the tee or the grass at the bottom of the swing's arc.

Irons, on the other hand, aim to strike the back of the ball as the clubhead nears the bottom of the swing's arc. So the ball should be played a bit back more toward the right foot. The shorter the iron shot, the closer to the right foot the ball should be played.

City Skaters Bid For Coast Titles

Senior dance teams are expected to make a strong bid for titles as 22 city skaters invade Vancouver's Kerrisdale Arena Sunday for the B.C. Coast figure skating championships.

Representing Victoria in the senior dance will be Wendy Nordby and Doug Dodge, Sharon Wood and Bill McDonald.

SKATING MEET

EDMONTON (CP)—The Canadian figure skating championships will be held here Feb. 7-10.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Los Angeles Dodgers and New York Yankees, two of baseball's powers, were squarely on the spot today following a daring major inter-league trade that sent first baseman Bill Skowron to the Dodgers in exchange for front-line pitcher Stan Williams.

Yankee manager Ralph Houk admitted he was loath to part with the 31-year-old Skowron who helped bring seven pennants in nine years to the New York club. But he said it was a trade the Yankees had to make.

"I felt we just had to get another established starting pitcher if we were to win the pennant again next year," he said.

The departure of the 26-year-old Williams, who won 14 games for the Dodgers last season, was the first move by Dodger general manager E. J. Bavasi, who had vowed to make some changes on the club that blew the National League flag in a playoff after going into the final week with a four-game lead.

"We're not through trading by any means," Bavasi said at the baseball convention here.

BOWSFIELD TRADED

In deals of much lesser impact, Kansas City Athletics announced the conditional purchase of southpaw pitcher Ted Bowsfield off Penitence, B.C., from Los Angeles Angels and Washington Senators sent Harry Bright, catcher—first baseman, to Cincinnati Reds for rookie first-baseman Rogelio Alvarez. Bavasi said Skowron, is "the guy who can supply us with the much needed right-hand punch we lacked last year." Skowron slammed 23 home runs and drove in 80 runs last season.

CHANCE FOR PEPTONE

Houk said he planned to give Joe Peptone, the 22-year-old left-handed hitting rookie, an opportunity to nail down the regular first base job.

"I think we're well protected at first base," he said. "If Joe doesn't make it next year, I'll give Hector Lopez a whack at the job. We've also got Dale Long who can do a good job as a fill-in."

The Yankees contemplate making no more trades, said Hamey.

"This is it," he said. "We got the man we wanted." Bowsfield, 27, suffered an injury to his left wrist since the close of the 1962 American League season. This was the reason the Athletics made the purchase conditionally.

Bowsfield had a 9-8 won-lost record last year with the Angels and an earned run average of 4.40. He was with Boston Red Sox and Cleveland Indians before moving to Los Angeles in the original expansion draft in 1961. His career major league record is 28 victories and 25 defeats.

The Bowsfield sale was part of the deal involving pitcher Dan Osinski, who was obtained by the Angels from the Athletics last year. At the time of the Osinski trade, the Angels agreed to send pitcher Bo Belinsky to the Athletics to complete the deal at the close of the season.

However, baseball commissioner Ford Frick ruled that clubs are not supposed to designate players until after the season ends and that Belinsky could not be sent to the Athletics.

TRADED by Boston Red Sox Sunday was American League batting champion Pete Runnels (above). Infielder Runnels went to Houston of National League in exchange for outfielder Roman Mejias. Runnels batted .326 last season. Mejias, 28.

BAUER'S EYES OPEN

Russian Team Sparks Revolt

VANCOUVER (CP)—Hockey expert Rev. David Bauer said Monday it will not be long before Canadian amateur teams will not be able to compete against Russian "pro" teams in world hockey championships and Olympic Games.

"We have a possibility of competing probably once more," he said. "But what about 1968?"

Father Bauer, of St. Mark's Roman Catholic College at the University of British Columbia, is coach of Canada's all-star team that will go to the next Olympics. He is coach of the UBC Thunderbird hockey team and former coach of St. Michael's College Majors in Toronto.

The all-stars were defeated 6-2 Friday in Toronto by a touring Russian team.

"I was flabbergasted," said Father Bauer. "I've spent a few sleepless nights and I'm going through a mental revolution."

"I thought I was going about coaching scientifically but then I saw the Russians. They have two coaches, one who directs the team and another who shoots movies of every game. In terms of fundamentals the

Gov't Should Buy More Of Its Goods, Services

Victoria Daily Times 15
TUESDAY, NOV. 27, 1962
PROPERTIES

National Parks Body Proposed

CHAIRMAN of the royal commission which today brought down the second of five reports on federal government operations is J. Grant Glassco of Toronto, former president of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants of Canada.

Queen's Printer Should Become Competitive

OTTAWA (CP) — Exit the Queen's Printer. Enter the Queen's Publisher.

This scrapping of one historic job and creation of another was recommended today in the second report of the Glassco royal commission on government organization.

It said printing should be left to the printers—in the government's case, a printing bureau operated as a "separate industrial activity" that would use half its capacity to supply official papers and the other half in competitive printing.

The Queen's Publisher then would emerge, free for the first time to devote his talents to publishing. The present $20,000-a-year job of Queen's Printer—held by Roger Duhamel—now requires supervision of both printing and publishing.

The Glassco commission said many public servants are doing research, compiling statistics, analyzing problems—the results of which will benefit the public only if they are communicated to others.

"Simply to print does not guarantee that it will be read."

"The true demand for a publication will not be realized unless the style attracts attention, potential readers know of its existence, and copies are made conveniently available. Without the publisher, the author may have limited success in supporting departmental objectives."

Publishing was defined as the whole process of selecting and editing the material, arranging for its printing and binding and finally promoting the sale.

Duplication Criticized

OTTAWA (CP)—Overlapping and duplication in federal communications systems was rapped today by the Glassco royal commission on government organization.

Its report, second of five, called for central planning and authority of the systems. The lack of it so far was described as "damaging to the public purse and to the efficiency of federal administration alike."

The report covers the administrative—as distinct from operational facilities of the armed forces, the various networks of the transport department, the RCMP, the external affairs department and the CBC. All told these cost $52,000,000 a year to operate.

In general, the three-man commission found existing government communications for administrative purposes to be "barely adequate for the present needs and inadequate for the immediately foreseeable future."

Defence communications were reported to be in better shape, mainly because financial limitations were less stringent. However, the report went on:

"But here the lack of unified planning and failure to take account of non-defence needs—both governmental and public—has inflated costs, curtailed flexibility, and may delay modernization or make it excessively expensive."

technical strength, engineering and efficiency of most of the systems, such as they are. But his blue ribbon went to the CBC. The CBC makes extensive use of radio and TV networks, renting of commercial facilities for its circuits for eight or 16 hours a day on contracts lasting five or 10 years. It calls tenders two years in advance, leaving suppliers free to integrate CBC and other services.

The RCMP also won praise for systems, "generally well managed and operated at a high level of efficiency" with a "lively, perhaps excessive, concern with economy" that may actually have limited the coverage and reliability of its radio service.

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government should be "buying" more of its goods and services and "making" fewer of them itself, the royal commission on government organization said today.

Federal spending on these goods and services now runs to $3,000,000,000 a year, the commission said. This takes in everything from operation of power plants and bakeries to the repair of shoes and ships from bait-freezing to road-building.

One example cited by the commission:

The transport department spends $2,000,000 annually to overhaul its fleet of 36 planes and 20 helicopters, ferrying each craft to its Ottawa plant for the job, although good overhaul companies are located elsewhere. The copters spend 20 to 30 per cent of their flying time shuttling to and from Ottawa for these jobs in a plant where the commission found "true costs" 35 per cent higher than in private industry. Another case:

The works department now spends $8,000,000 annually on staff cleaning of the 2,850 federal buildings across Canada, contracting out only $1,000,000 of cleaning. It estimated a saving of around $1,000,000 a year in public funds if the department would do more contracting.

The government can often—though not always—get its requirements from private enterprises, the report said.

Part of the build-up in government "make" activities was attributed to the attitude of senior civil servants.

MOTIVES QUESTIONED

Some favor self-provided services due to "motives of self-interest, including consideration of such matters as the opportunities for advancement as well as the challenge of new undertakings."

The cost argument—that it costs less for a department to do the job itself—was tackled vigorously by the commission. Many public servants believe government work is cheaper than private enterprise.

"They ignore the fact that true costs exceed the figures provided by their accounts by 50 per cent or more."

Some specific points made in the report:

The publicly-owned CBC with 366 employees in Montreal and Toronto to stage its TV programs, including 109 carpenters, should adopt a "positive rather than restrictive" policy for working with private enterprise and divert at least one-third of its staging work to outside contractors. The annual volume would be about $1,000,000.

The National Film Board, set up to promote film production, obtained only $148,723 worth of films from private firms in 1960-61 while turning out $3,524,551 worth itself. Even the CBC was promoting the private film industry more than the board, whose outside contracts now are only half what they were in 1957.

Although government policy is to provide cafeterias for civil servants only if it doesn't mean loss of public funds, the works department has provided the cafeteria operators—with out charge—$10,000,000 worth of equipment from butcher blocks to coffee urns, plus free services worth about $2,500,000 a year.

The army is spending $13,000,000 a year to maintain the 1,300-mile Alaska Highway. The job fell to the army originally because there were no private facilities in the area. These facilities would never appear unless the army progressively shifted the job to outside contractors. Anyway, in event of war the maintenance would have to be moved to civilian management or continued by the army at the expense of more vital jobs.

National defence headquarters in Ottawa has 20 photographers turning out black-and-white photos for use in public relations, when nearly all the work could be done equally well by commercial photographers.

The transport department could realize savings "not only of money but in administrative distraction" by ending its $250,000-a-year job of making and repairing navigation aids. The work now is being done

'Perfunctory Check' Made

OTTAWA (CP)—At times only "a somewhat perfunctory check" is made of draft federal government regulations before they are put into force, the Glassco royal commission on government organization said today.

The reason is that the volume of the regulations sometimes exceeds the legal facilities for reviewing them, the commission reported. In one recent year there were 578 federal regulations which filled 1,618 pages of the official Canada Gazette.

New Estimates Tabled

OTTAWA (CP)—Supplementary spending estimates of $18,154,574—more than two-thirds for technical and vocational training assistance and subsidies to the railways to hold the line on freight rates—were tabled in the Commons Monday by Finance Minister Nowlan.

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government has $4,000,000 invested in land, buildings and structures with another $300,000,000 being added every year. It owns more property, and rents more, than any other organization in the country. Yet, says the Glassco royal commission, the government lacks a proper concept of good property management. The commission recommended that the government get itself a property manager by stripping the public works department of its current role and giving it the property job.

OTTAWA (CP)—Removal of national parks from direct government control through establishment of a national parks commission is urged in the second report of the Glassco royal commission on government organization.

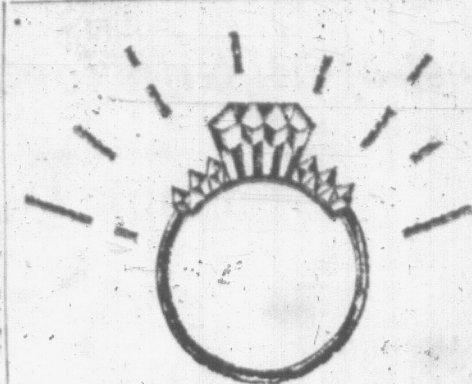

It suggests a review of national park policy to make the parks self-sufficient, give residents of parks more say in the operation of their townships and strengthen the authority of park chiefs.

The new commission should be made up of people from outside the government service. Their job would be to develop the parks on a self-sustaining financial basis.

The report, released today, is critical of the low revenue from parkland timber.

The National Parks Act was called a "contradiction" in that it dedicates the parks to the people "for their benefit, education and enjoyment," then goes on to state that they must be maintained so as to leave them unimpaired for future generations.

These two aims "may well become increasingly irreconcilable as public use increases with an accompanying further development of the nine existing townships and continuing construction of roads and trails," the commission reports.

Strachan Asks Cease-Fire by Both Sides on B.C.'s Labor Front

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan Monday night in Dunsmuir Square issued a plea for a cease-fire on B.C.'s labor front.

"I am publicly calling for a halt to any and all inflammatory statements or actions—by editorial writers, by labor, by management and especially by some of our less responsible politicians," Mr. Strachan told a Chamber of Commerce meeting.

The New Democratic Party leader also condemned some trade unionists for recent statements.

He blamed violence in B.C.

Mr. Strachan's speech followed a statement by Premier Bennett earlier Monday blaming the NDP for unrest in the labor field.

Mr. Strachan said the NDP doesn't and shouldn't interfere in trade union affairs. Nor do unions interfere with the NDP.

"But this does not prevent me from saying quite bluntly that some of the statements made in recent weeks by a few trade unionists can only hurt the cause of labor in B.C."

"Such statements get no support from me nor the NDP," Mr. Strachan did not identify these trade unionists.

He said he had warned in 1960 and 1961 that B.C. legislation would foster labor strife. But at the same time there is never any excuse for violence by either side in a dispute.

"In this province as elsewhere in North America we have reactionaries of the far right and radicals of the far left. Both of these groups are extremists and neither of them is interested in promoting peace and understanding in the field of labor-management relations.

"The agitators of the far right are responsible for pushing through the legislation that destroyed the possibilities of industrial peace in B.C."

"This legislation created the conditions and the climate which allowed the schemers of the far left to move in and promote discord and violence."

Mr. Strachan said that recent violence at the strike-bound Allied Engineering plant in Vancouver was not caused by employees of the firm. The trouble came after the employer won an injunction preventing picketing. Mr. Strachan said this opened the way for "a so-called citizens' picket line."

"It is this procedure which opens the door to a few provocateurs to be present and deliberately initiate violence."

Mr. Strachan said the only way to challenge B.C.'s laws is through the courts; the only way to change them is in the legislature.

"I admit that with our present government it is sometimes difficult to get into court to challenge the laws, and impossible to overcome their one-sided majority in the legislature until the next election changes that."

"We strengthen the hand of those who desire labor-management strife when the attorney-general of B.C. consults only with the Vancouver Board of Trade."

"What is required is government leadership to remove the provocative cause of the unrest."

VICTORIA, B.C., TUESDAY, NOV. 27, 1962—PAGE 17

ARTHUR MAYSE

Picking up where we left off on Saturday, the list of presents which people would like to get but rarely do has grown by several items.

It now includes a five-gallon crock with lid, a sack of African violet earth, enough clothespins (plastic) to fill a stocking, and a compartmented drawer divider.

Among less tangible gifts yearned for is a month of solid sunshine, a request which we pass on with a hearty endorsement to weatherman Bill Mackie.

Then there's the combiuter whose Christmas would be enriched if someone undertook to smooth out the Pat Bay Highway right-hand lane from the Royal Oak intersection.

Nuisance and dangerous, says he, and rendered more so by a mushy shoulder.

Also to hand is a plea from a hard-pressed government information officer, who says the best gift Victoria's essay-writing students could make him would be a more specific notion of what's needed when they write in for material.

No more letters like this of late week, he begs.

"Dear Sir:

"Please send me everything on British Columbia."

In this matter of student essays: I've often wished the juveniles who frequent our place would write the way they talk.

It charms me, for instance, to hear a school casually referred to as "The Rock," and to learn that standard nomenclature for Julius Caesar is "Big Julie."

But let the kids take ballpoint in hand, and what then of the fine, free-wheeling diction, the words and phrases keyed to their staccato generation? Gone out the window, to be replaced by grudging, dragging paragraphs that plod woodenly to the ordained word-count but not a syllable beyond.

At rare intervals, though—generally when some teacher deals out a topic that snarls the imagination—the young forget to change gears. When this happens, the results can surprise and even delight.

I read one such essay which had the told-tale quality of folk lore, another that took one of childhood's vague legends and dished it up as an authentic spine-tingler.

Perhaps the best to come my way was titled "My Car," written by a boy who didn't own a set of wheels and wouldn't for years. But out of wishful thinking and detailed knowledge, he did a piece worth reading.

Mixed sparingly among the unwilling victims of the assigned essay are the writers of the future. Being wise, these white crowds do all in their power to conceal the color of their plumage. But it shows, and the English teacher to whom it is revealed will forgive these potential scribes anything.

Even Big Julie.

If you happen to have one of these budding writers in your family, it's best to insist that he learn some other, and preferably non-related trade. This won't interfere with his ambitions in the least, and will give him an anchor to windward for which he will bless you later.

Don't praise his efforts too lavishly, since that tactic can harm him more than any amount of criticism, and don't try to push him faster than his own pace dictates.

As for writers' courses, classes, groups and conferences, they're sometimes great fun and the best can help, but not really very much. In the end, the business boils down to one unaided person sticking a blank sheet in a typewriter (two, if you want your machine to last) and doing his best to clothe his notions with words.

A final observation: writers grow rather than learn. Like all growth, a seed is required. If it isn't there, no outside agency can plant it.

ANTIQUE, BUT STILL NEAT

Well over a century old but still capable of stitching a fine seam is this sewing machine accepted as a trade-in by Eaton's. It was manufactured by Wilcox Clark, U.S. firm that vanished from the industrial scene

TAX CEILING, AUTOMATION

Oak Bay Planks Revealed

A ceiling on taxes and in-statement of automated methods are two election planks voiced by Oak Bay council candidates preparing to meet ratepayers next month.

Brief statements were made by the five last-day entrants to the annual municipal council race, making a total of eight men contesting three vacancies.

All but one are newcomers to the field.

Alex. Hendry, secretary of Victoria Plywood, said Oak Bay has been progressive in the past, but "with rising costs today, councillors must anticipate, put in new machinery and up-to-date methods."

Asked about amalgamation, he said he felt unqualified to speak "at this time," preferring to study the question more closely.

REVISION

He does favor a revision of the system of making per capita grants to municipalities in view of increased provincial revenues, and would like the province to assume more responsibility for education.

Postal clerk G. F. Kenny was definite about amalgamation—"no."

He is concerned, too, about rising taxes, which he feels must be kept down for people on limited incomes—especially those who have helped to build the municipality—will be forced out.

"Lots of old couples are having a struggle getting by," he said.

UTTER DISGRACE

Zoning needs attention—it's an utter disgrace"—Mr. Kenny said.

He would re-establish the municipal playground program and erect a number of swimming pools in parks, rather than construct a recreation centre.

Driver of a car which collided with a CPR locomotive on Store Street Monday evening escaped injury.

The car received only medium damage.

Richard A. Jolly, 881 Short, was driving north on Store about 5:30 p.m. when he collided with CPR locomotive No. 15, being driven south by Joe Denny, 160 Howe.

The car then mounted a curb hitting a parked car on a service station lot.

Thirty Victoria civil servants will be honored for 25 years' service at a ceremony Dec. 11 in the Empress Hotel.

In Store Theft

Keith C. Cooper, 2835 Rockwell, was fined $75 in city police court today and given a one-year suspended sentence for theft of a frozen chicken from a supermarket.

He pleaded guilty.

Counsel David Hummel asked for leniency in view of the record of the accused in the navy, from which he retired as Commander. He also said the offence was "impulsive."

"I am always very doubtful about the impulsiveness of this kind of thing," Magistrate William Oosterling replied.

BRIEF SEARCH FOR 'LOST' BIOLOGIST

A provincial game biologist was object of a brief "search" after he failed to return from a deer-counting survey in Leechtown area Monday night.

A navy helicopter stood by this morning to fly into Sooke Lake after Don McCaughan, 27, Vancouver Island biologist for the fish and game branch, was noted overdue.

Shawnigan Lake RCMP and game warden Jack Lenfesty went into the desolate region this morning and reported just before noon that they had picked up McCaughan "safe and sound."

A game branch spokesman said there were no details, but he could understand delay due to wet and snowy conditions in the bush.

WALTON ESTATE

Zone Hearing Surprise To Residents

Residents in the vicinity of Lansdowne and Richmond expressed surprise today that Saanich council called a public hearing Monday to consider an application to rezone for garden apartment use, the estate of the late G. H. Walton.

They said they didn't know the meeting had been called.

The 1.3-acre property on the southeast corner of Richmond and Lansdowne, was rezoned by council from single-family resident to garden apartment use, following a public hearing.

No one appeared at the hearing to oppose the rezoning application.

FINAL READING

But council ruled that it would not give final reading to the rezoning bylaw until the lands and planning committee complete its recommendations on regulations of garden apartment developments.

Residents, who earlier this year successfully opposed an application to rezone the land for high-rise apartments, said the reason they didn't attend the hearing was because they had no idea it was scheduled.

(Saanich announced the meeting in a small public notice which appeared in local newspapers.)

'LUKEWARM'

The majority of residents were also lukewarm to council's decision to rezone.

"We had no idea a meeting was being held," said Mrs. G. W. Paul, 1895 Lansdowne. "We are vitally interested in the development of the property."

Mrs. G. A. Finestone, 1867 Watson, said a garden apartment type of development would be better than having several box type dwellings on the property.

But, she added, it would all depend how the property was landscaped.

At the public hearing, Avis Walton said the amenities of the property would be preserved.

"The alternative," she said, is "this can be turned over to someone who will build a bunch of NHA sugar-box houses."

Boulevard Care Plan May Fold

City Considers Service Cut As Tax Revenue Inadequate

City parks committee today scheduled a special meeting to decide whether the boulevard tax should be raised or abolished.

Committee members set the special session for Monday morning next week.

The tax is levied on a relatively small percentage of householders on "improved" boulevards to help pay for special servicing of the city-owned green strips in front of their homes.

The city's problem is that this service costs considerably more than the levy produces in revenue.

During the current year, the city expects to receive about $64,000 from the tax while spending $114,000 on caring for the boulevards.

TREES COSTLY

In addition, it will spend another $26,500 for trees on untaxed boulevards that are not classified as improved and are left to the householders to look after.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow told his colleagues that the city should "drop the tax completely and let everyone look after their own boulevard."

His suggestion undoubtedly will receive close scrutiny at the special meeting along with comments made by aldermen during last spring's budget debates that the present tax should be raised to make the program self-supporting.

Alcoholism Body Seeks Backing

The Vancouver Island Alcoholism Foundation, desperate for funds to set up a clinic in Victoria, is seeking affiliation with a government-backed agency.

James Audain, president of the Island group, said today he has been trying to win the support of the B.C. Alcoholism Foundation, which operates on provincial grants.

The B.C. foundation, set up by the government, gets $125,000 a year.

Mr. Audain said the Island group needs about $8,000 to establish its clinic.

APPEAL STYMIED

So far appeals for funds have been stymied.

Government officials have told Mr. Audain he could get some aid if he first gets contributions from the general public.

Public reaction has been that the government-sponsored B.C. foundation should pay for the clinic.

Mr. Audain said the B.C. foundation is provincial in name only.

It has not given any money to the Island group, and only occasionally sends literature and films.

NEED BACKING

"We need all the backing we can get—from anybody," said Mr. Audain.

He made a public appeal for support as this is Alcoholism Information Week in B.C.

He said he is still hopeful that his group can join the B.C. foundation, but this apparently depends on an increase in the government grant.

At present there is no special treatment available on the Island for alcoholics, said Mr. Audain. His plan is to set up an information office with a consultant to provide assistance to alcoholics and with funds to pay for treatment.

DANCERS UPSET

Keen Pupil Stopped The Music

A man who wanted to take dancing lessons pleaded guilty in city police court today to causing a public disturbance in a downtown dance studio Monday.

Russel W. Pearce, 1319 1/2 Broad, was accused of terrifying girls taking dancing lessons at the Golden Slipper, 1318 Broad, about 8 p.m.

CLASSES STOPPED

Police testified his abnormal dress and actions had disrupted classes in progress.

Pearce was wearing a hunting knife in a sheath at his belt and clothes, "not normal for dancing in," court was told.

He admitted wearing three jackets and a tamoshanter to the hall.

He put on dancing slippers to dance with the girls before he was ordered to leave by the management. He was alleged to have kicked the door on leaving and struggled with police constables called to the scene, outside the hall.

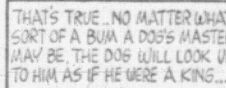

Pearce contended he had been invited into the hall and had watched the girls dancing for 20 minutes without disturbing anyone.

THREE JACKETS

No one could see the knife because of his three jackets, he claimed.

He said because he was ordered to leave "emphatically," he bowed himself out of the building sarcastically, with a flourish of his tamoshanter, pushing the door open with his foot.

Magistrate William Ostler remanded the case to Friday pending reports by probation officer and psychiatrist.

Improve Your Self-Portrait With Artist's Make-Up Kit

By PENNY SAVER

I've never thought of my face as a canvas on an easel, but after looking more closely in the mirror I could see the resemblance. It certainly could do with a good paint job. No doubt that is what the manufacturer had in mind when he designed a make-up kit to look like an artist's palette.

Brushes, paints, mixing well and pencils, what more does an artist need? All this in a dainty case about 5" long and only $7.95. The mirror on the inside lid indicates it really is for personal use and not for the artist.

Another item that sells for the same price is more decorative than practical. This is a lipstick holder that will hold six tubes of lipstick and will enhance any dressing table. It looks like it might have adorned the dressing table of Marie Antoinette.

If you are one of those practical creatures, like Penny, and always have to say "what's it good for?" you will be more interested in the satin brocade gift items. They add a touch of glamor to the practical.

Have you ever wondered what you could give a friend who was leaving for a vacation in England? Don't wonder any longer—give them an oriental brocade hot water bottle cover. I can't think of anything for $2.50 that would be appreciated more, except maybe one with a hot water bottle inside.

For those not so fortunate as to be going on a trip you could brighten up their bridge season with a red satin brocade bridge case for $1.20.

And still more practical are large cotton square scarfs with an oriental pattern in subtle tones for $1.25 each. Buy two, stitch them together and you have a blouse. It has all the qualities we are always looking for—attractive, inexpensive and easy to make.

Interested? Phone Penny at 382-3131.

DEAR ABBY...

Has His Cake—and Eats It!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Every night after school (and on Saturdays) I work in my father's bakery shop. Lately I have started to eat everything in sight. I know I am gaining weight, but I can't stop eating. I suppose I eat so much because it is free. I am 15 and have never had a date. Do you think my weight has something to do with it? I know chocolate makes my skin break out, but I can't leave that alone, either.

NO WILLPOWER.

DEAR NO: I could scold you, but it wouldn't help. You need to scold yourself. Writing to me was the first step. It proves that you are unhappy with yourself. The bakery goods are not "free"—you are paying for them in the most expensive way: popularity, good looks and self-approval. LAY OFF!

DEAR ABBY: Is there a way to tell a dear friend without hurting her, that I do not wish to talk to her child on the telephone? I seldom call her for that reason. But she calls me often and puts the child on the telephone the moment I say "Hello."

I cannot understand the child and it is extremely exasperating. How can I let my friend know that her child is not as interesting to others as she is to her?

DAILY READER.

DEAR READER: If you value her friendship—say nothing. The child will not be a child forever, and a good friend is hard to find.

DEAR ABBY: My wife's aunt came to spend a few days with us. She used the guest room which we recently redecorated. The new wallpaper has a lovely lifelike strawberry pattern all over it. The next morning the aunt came down covered with hives! She said she was allergic to strawberries! I saw the hives myself and called out doctor. I said she must have eaten strawberries before she came to our house and this was a delayed reaction. The doctor said she could have gotten the hives from looking at the strawberry pattern on the wallpaper. I have never heard of anything so ridiculous in my life. This can't be possible, can it?

MR. S. S.

DEAR MR. S. S.: It is indeed possible. It is called "psychosomatic"—or, more simply, "conditioning."

DEAR ABBY: A relative of mine gave me a blouse for my birthday and I have never seen an uglier one. It has every color of the rainbow in it and doesn't go with anything I own. Every time this relative sees me she asks me how come I am not wearing that blouse. What should I say?

CONSERVATIVE.

DEAR CONSERVATIVE: Tell her you are saving it for a "special occasion." (True—you never know when you'll be invited to a Halloween party.)

What's on your mind? For a personal reply send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

BE SMART—

Color contrasts add a brighter dimension of interest to the new accessory collections. Sleek chamois gloves are softly cuffed in brown leather and trimmed with black braid. A ruffy calfskin handbag combines black and beige in an unusual twisting pattern to spell personality plus.

Pearl Farming, an Art

From the very beginning when women wore an adornment, pearls have held a special place in the realms of jewels. Although not as durable as gemstones, their remarkable lustrous properties have captured the imagination of all races, both past and present. Today the cultured pearl carries on the tradition. It takes years and great skill to produce a pearl. The operation starts with a man who breeds oysters and when they have grown to their prime, passes them on to a "farmer." The farmer then places a round mother-of-pearl bead into the body of the oyster; this is an extremely difficult operation akin to the delicate surgical technique as practised in our hospitals. This operation complete, the oyster is housed in a cage and put back in the water. Skilful people have to keep a constant watch; too much variation in the water temperature can quickly kill the oysters and they are moved periodically to different vicinities to maintain a correct temperature. They are also regularly cleaned to keep them healthy. Even with this great care, it is only a small percentage of oysters that produces pearls suitable for use as jewelry.

MATURING PROCESS

When the oysters have been in the water for the required number of years (depending on what quality the farmer is trying to obtain) the harvesting begins and the processing and sorting commences. Trained girls blend and match colors and qualities to make the necklets that we see in jeweler's selection.

Value of the pearl is decided by the following: Its lustre, size, shape, color and cleanliness.

ness. If the pearl possesses the best of all these, then you have a very rare pearl which is naturally expensive.

The lustre of the pearl depends on the thickness of the coating and the longer the pearl is left in the water, the better the lustre should be. Against this, however, it must be remembered that the longer it is left in the water, the greater chance that the oyster will die, the pearl can become misshapen, spotted or a bad color.

DIFFERENT SHAPES

All pearls are not round. For various reasons, which it is impossible to determine, some pearls are slightly oval or pear shaped and a large quantity are misshapen or what we call "baroque." These do not command the same price as a round pearl.

Color is largely a matter of taste. The most expensive color is white with a light rose tinge or very light cream with a rose tinge. The various countries in the world prefer different colors but in a general way, the two colors mentioned are the most sought after and, therefore, the most expensive. The production of these pearls is very small.

A perfectly clean pearl is very rare and if you examine a pearl carefully, you will see in most cases there are some spots or imperfections. Some pearls are, of course, very badly spotted but if the pearl has a thick coating and consequently, a high lustre, its spottedness will not detract from its attraction.

Pearls are a regular part of a jeweler's stock and there is no doubt that they will continue to be so. Pearls can be worn on any occasion; they are always correct.

TODAY'S RECIPE

IRISH STEW

Six large potatoes, peeled and cut into 1½ inch cubes, 2 teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, 6 large onions (sliced), 2½ lbs. lean boneless lamb cut into 1-inch cubes, 2 cups water.

In a heavy saucepan, place a layer of potatoes and sprinkle with a little salt and pepper. Add a layer of onions and again season. Place a layer of lamb on top of this and season. Repeat until all of the ingredients are used up. The top layer should consist of potatoes. Pour the water over it and cover. Bring to boil and cook over low heat for 1½ hours, or until the lamb is tender. (If desired, carrots and celery can be added in additional layers).

The Irish stew, when celery and carrots are added, is a complete course, but, if an extra vegetable is needed, Lima beans blend in extremely well.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Men, Too, Find Loss of Weight Aids Good Health

I never forget the men, God bless them, and sometimes I even write about them. As a matter of fact, I am continually surprised by the number of men who read my column.

Of course I write about many subjects which interest the brawny as well as the fair sex. Information concerning health, mental viewpoint, nutrition and longevity is valuable to both men and women.

Women are more likely to reduce for appearance's sake than men, but with today's knowledge of the hazards of overweight, men have become increasingly interested in slimming down.

With heart trouble a number one threat to men and obesity an important ally of heart trouble, a man is flirting with danger if he does not banish those extra burdening pounds. Men, like women, fall heir to so many wonderful by-products of weight loss, too. All sorts of minor disabilities disappear and energy is greatly increased. There is a feeling of well being which is lacking before. Overweight places a strain on the whole man or woman and also points up any physical weaknesses one may have.

Sometimes it takes a quick loss of a few pounds to encourage an individual to continue calorie counting. This is true of men as well as women. A man requires more calories than a woman, even when reducing, because of his greater stature. Most men lose successfully on 1,000 to 1,800 calories daily.

As a before Christmas holiday help I offered my Nine Day Reducing Diet yesterday to my feminine readers. Today I offer my Tubby Hubby Diet to men. This gives a man a loss of from seven to 12 pounds in 12 days time. If you would like to have this diet sent 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman-in care of this newspaper.

Montreal Visitor Hosts Dinner

Eighty-two guests attended a dinner given by Mr. R. C. Stevenson, Montreal, in the ballroom of the Empress Hotel on Saturday evening. Mr. Stevenson, presently on a cross-Canada tour, is a member of the national board of management of the Navy League of Canada. Guests were Navy League officials of Vancouver Island; naval officers, Royal Canadian sea cadet officers and Navy League cadet officers. Seated with the host at the head table were Mr. Denis W. Brown, Mr. G. V. Bishop, Mrs. G. A. Dufour, Commodore J. A. Charles, RCN; Capt. D. G. Padmore, RCN; Lt. Cmdr. P. Cook, RCN; Lt. Cmdr. W. W. Bowditch, RCN, all of Victoria; Mr. E. Larson and Mrs. D. W. Barker, Shawnigan Lake; Mr. Les Hamner and Mr. Ulf Jensen, Alberni; Mr. N. Bevan, Duncan; Mr. R. Wilkinson, Nanaimo, and Mr. E. Wilson, Brentwood. Mr. E. A. MacFayden (Mayor Harris) presented a scroll from the city in recognition of contribution made to centennial celebrations by Royal Canadian sea cadets. Special guests were Shawnigan Lake cadets Julian Blake and C. Phillips-Wooley, who placed second in national sailing regatta held in Montreal and the host's nephew, Lt. Cmdr. Hugh Plant, RCN.

Honored at Tea Hour Party

Miss Eleanor Morley, here from Vancouver on her first visit to Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club as a vice-president of national federation, was honored last Sunday afternoon at the tea hour when Miss E. L. Forbes entertained in her Newport Avenue home. Other guests were executive members of the Duncan and Sidney clubs, and executive members and past presidents of Victoria club. Presiding at the tea table were Mrs. W. M. (Gladys) Munro, Mrs. H. G. (Nell) Horth and Miss Ruth Adams, presidents of the three clubs. Assisting the hostess were Mrs. C. W. Paulin, Mrs. F. J. (Marguerite) Laughlin, Mrs. S. E. (Vera) Wade and Mrs. Mary Webb.

Visit London

Victorians in London, England, recently and who registered at British Columbia House, were Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Moorehead, Miss Frances Quincey, and Mr. Jack Mounce.

Halifax Wedding

Of interest to Victorians is the recent marriage in Brooklyn United Baptist Church, Yarmouth, N.S., of Wilma Mae, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Tinkham of Yarmouth, and Richard Mayhew Cotton, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Cotton of Victoria.

Spruce boughs and wedding bells decorated the church for the candlelit service. Rev. H. U. Hutchison officiated. Mrs. H. Hatfield, cousin of the bride, sang "O Promise Me" during signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a floor-length gown of white nylon organza and lace. Shoulder-length veil pouffed from a crown of simulated pearls. She carried a white lace-covered Bible with red roses and rosebuds on streamers.

ONE ATTENDANT

Maid of honor, Miss Miriam Grant wore a floor-length gown of gold brocade, matching headpiece and carried white carnations with her white lace-covered Bible.

Eric Meuse was best man. Ushers were Bruce Scott and Wayne Peavey.

After a reception in IOOF hall, at Yarmouth, the bride donned a going-away ensemble of brown and beige three-piece knit suit, beige maribou hat, brown accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. The newlyweds will make their home in Halifax, N.S.

Club Celebrates National Night

National Night, celebrated annually by Business and Professional Women's Clubs across Canada to assess work done by the federation to improve conditions for all women who work, was marked by Victoria Club on Monday evening at a supper meeting.

Club president, Miss Ruth Adams presided; second vice-president, Enid Webster was in charge of arrangements.

Tables were decorated with arrangements of dark red chrysanthemums and salal leaves and matching red programs decorated with golden stars.

GUESTS

Special guests were Miss Eleanor Morley, Vancouver, a national vice-president, and the club's 1962 memorial scholarship winner, Miss Linda Larson and her mother, Mrs. N. Larson.

Lillian Smith, chairman of the scholarship committee, introduced Miss Larson to the gathering. She received the $200 award at a presentation ceremony in Oak Bay High School in early autumn and is now continuing her studies at Victoria College.

Miss Morley, who was introduced by Miss E. L. Forbes, brought greetings from the national board and stressed the importance of acceptance of federation's theme for the next two years — "Reach Out and Grow."

THE SPEAKER

Miss Hilda Hesson was speaker of the evening. She focused attention on outstanding national presidents and their work in the 32 years since the federation was formed.

"They built the foundations," she said, "it is up to us to continue their work today and to build as solidly for the future." Miss Hesson was introduced by Marguerite Laughlin.

Go out on a limb,
serve Seagram's Gin

That's the spirit!
While most folks deck the halls with colourless Gins, you serve up Seagram's Gin with its hint of amber colour. The difference, of course, is dryness. By ageing Seagram's Gin longer we remove unwanted sweetness and perfume. As the gin becomes crisply dry, Nature supplies that amber tint. So remember, 'tis the season to serve Seagram's. Because it's extra dry.

Rare, Raw Meat Not Guaranteed

Dr. A. Kidd, chief veterinarian inspector for the Department of Agriculture, told members of the Victoria branch of the Consumers Association of Canada, "there is no way that 100 per cent safety can be guaranteed if rare or raw meat is eaten, but all inspected meat, if well cooked, is safe."

At the meeting held Monday afternoon in the Music Room of the Public Library, Dr. Kidd outlined inspection facilities as they exist throughout the province.

He said: "Meat inspection is the inspection for wholesomeness and is not for grading of meat."

Inspection in the abattoirs is for the purpose of detecting diseased or bruised meat. Inspection of retail meat markets is carried out by sanitary inspectors from the public health offices.

Meat inspection is not compulsory in all areas of the province, Dr. Kidd said. "Meat inspection in any municipality requires a local bylaw."

Dr. Kidd felt that the most efficient abattoir "would have a veterinarian in charge with trained laymen to assist him."

Mrs. A. B. Young presided. She stressed the importance of all consumers to provide examples with their complaints. "It is not enough to complain of a product, the consumer must supply the Food and Drug Directorate with proof before action can be taken."

Mrs. E. Mills, in her report on staples used in food packaging, said "there is one company in particular still using staples. Another company is using heat-sealed packages. It is up to consumers to exercise their views by buying only the packages they feel are safe. Unless public opinion is voiced nothing will be done."

Reporting on a local survey of retailers' opinions regarding use of Canada standard sizes Mrs. C. G. Brown said that most local retailers were in favor of the CSS being used.

PET POINTS

By Dr. J. R. Enas

Do Cats Really Purr?

Yes. The sound is caused by air passing over the uvula, a fold of skin in the cat's throat.

Clinic: Q. Our female cat is ready to drop her second litter. I would like to have her spayed so that this will be her last litter. How long must I wait after this birth to spay her? Also, will the operation affect her disposition?

Miss R.G., Douglas, Ariz. A. You should delay spaying your cat for at least three to four weeks after she has weaned her kittens. The spaying will have no effect on her disposition.

Clinic: Q. My three-year-old parakeet is let out of his cage every night for about one hour. However, after he has been out for this time, he becomes very excited and vomits. Can you tell me what is causing this?

L.S.C., Brooklyn, N.Y. A. Many parakeets often mistake themselves for another bird when they see themselves reflected in mirrors or other shiny objects. Sometimes the parakeet will regurgitate his food to feed his new "friend" a digested meal. Observe your parakeet. If his vomiting spells follow sessions in front of a mirror or other reflecting object, this could be your problem. However, if this is not the cause and the vomiting continues, have your veterinarian examine the bird.

Clinic: Q. Can you help me get some information on becoming a veterinarian? I'm in high school and am very interested in becoming a veterinarian but don't know where to obtain information on the subject.

A.J., North Sydney, Nova Scotia.

A. If you love animals you will find the practice of veterinary medicine very satisfying and rewarding. Canada has two very fine veterinary schools — a French-speaking school at the University of Montreal and an English school at Guelph, Ontario. In the Eastern U.S., there are veterinary schools at Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y., and the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia. The Deans of these schools will be happy to furnish you with information about their courses and requirements.

DOGGING IT—Baron Von Dusseldorf, a year-old Weimeraner who was bruised by a car near his Los Angeles home a few weeks ago, liked the ensuing physical therapy treatment so well that he's pretending he still has the aches and pains. His owner, Mrs. Betty Schon (above) who happens to be a physical therapist, says the Baron is completely healed now but is still pleading for regular treatments, which include hot packs, ultrasonic waves, massage and ultraviolet heat treatments. HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

In there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books on other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by mail readers and those who submit the questions by video to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The questions, who ask the five questions answered each day receive a 30-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and at the season ends.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Le Rue Hansen, age 13, Ephraim, Utah, for his question:

When was the first library established?

History began when our remotest ancestors invented writing and used it to set down the records of human events. Writing was invented by several widely separated cultures of ancient people. Each group used whatever writing materials were handy and developed its own system of pictures or letters to set down its own language. This kindergarten period of human history lasted for thousands of years.

The people of ancient Mesopotamia used pointed sticks to do their cuneiform writing on damp clay. The ancient Egyptians made long scrolls of papyrus from the leaves of reedy plants and wrote their records with brushes and black ink. The scholars of old Constantinople used ink to write on dried animal skins, and the early Chinese invented paper for their writings.

For perhaps thousands of years writing and reading was a rare art. But in time more and more people learned to read and write, and collections of written material began to grow. Several different cultures had invented writing, and several different cultures hit upon the idea of keeping their written material in a library.

Perhaps Egypt was the first to start a library, or perhaps the first library was founded in ancient Mesopotamia. We know part of the story of libraries from later records and part from archaeological excavations — but we do not know enough to say who started the first library or where.

The papyrus scrolls of Egypt were perishable and many have crumbled to fragments. But later records tell us that a great library was founded 4,500 years ago at Giza, where the sturdy pyramids still stand. The Pharaoh Ramesses II founded a library at Thebes 4,300 years ago. Most of the scrolls have crumbled, but ruins of many ancient Egyptian libraries have been excavated. The catalogs of books were found carved into the stone library walls.

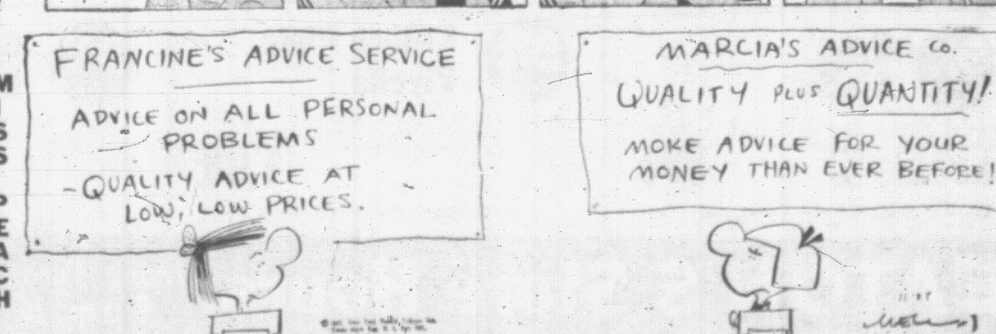

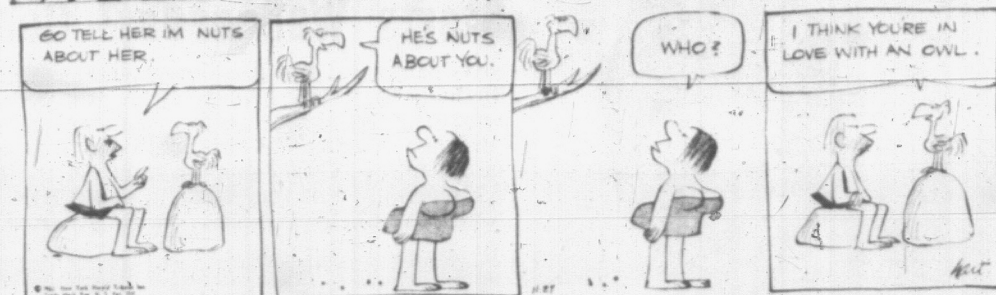

Found In 1853

We do not know when great Babylon started its first library of clay tablets. But in 1853, the ruins of the library of old Nineveh were unearthed. More than 20,000 clay tablets were recovered, some of them dating back 3,000 years. So far, scientific research can prove that certain cultures have had libraries for more than 4,000 years. And no doubt the ruins or records of still older libraries are waiting to be found in unexpected places.

The Greeks of Athens started libraries maybe 2,500 years ago, and as their culture grew so did their respect for their libraries. They collected records from all over the world and established public libraries in their city-states. The private collections of Plato and Aristotle were later taken to Alexandria in Egypt where in 332 B.C. the most famous library of the ancient world was founded.

Hunters Fined $50

100 MILE HOUSE (CP) — Local Hunters Algot Person and Phillip Zellar were fined $50 apiece Monday for carrying loaded rifles in their cars. They pleaded guilty. Person drew another $25 for not having a hunting licence.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—At this time of year the farm always seems so attractive to those of us who don't live on farms . . . and we just love to sit in a big cinder house, or in a plush night club and tell how we adore the old homestead.

"I'd just love to live on the farm again," we're likely to say as we sip champagne and tug our French cuffs neatly into place.

Well, we're not going to have to prove that statement, evi-

TRAFFIC FINES

In city police court Monday:

Lawrence R. Feele, 2201 Spring, $40, careless driving.

Harold R. Ogden, 20 Helmsden, $35, careless driving, and $75 and licence suspension, failure to remain at scene of accident.

Lam Iswar, 2943 Bridge, $10, no driver's licence.

Virgil T. Lalonde, 3054 Earl Grey, $10, failure to yield right of way.

Ernest D. Taylor, 1708 Ash, $15, no driver's licence.

Jim Halverson, 738/Discovery, $15, no driver's licence.

Mollie A. Houston, 2570 Arbutus, $10, illegal left turn.

Ideal Fuel Co. Ltd., 2735

In Esquimalt police court Monday:

Peter Hallis, 625 Lampson, $40 and licence suspension, careless driving.

Charles A. Anslow, 714 Rock Heights, $40, careless driving.

Kenneth F. Reed, Work Point Barracks, $40, careless driving.

Bert R. Weir, Work Point Barracks, $25, violating driver's licence restriction.

Nelson N. Waddell, HMCS Naden, $30, no driver's licence.

Leonard Evans, 1710 Ash, $20, permitting unlicensed minor to drive, and $3, registration not in place.

dently, because it appears that the farm is disappearing. "What!" you say. "No more farms—no more farmers' daughters, no more travelling salesmen! Nobody saying 'You can take the boy out of the country but you can't take the country out of the boy.'"

It seems likely that Cleveland and Akron will one day run together and have to merge into something called either "Cleveland" or "Cleveland."

Fort Worth and Dallas will grow together and will merge but neither will yield up its name. Fort Worth will say Dallas and Fort Worth should be known simply as "Greater Fort Worth."

It's happening everywhere—on a recent trip to Holland, we heard a speller on a rubberneck bus saying the cities there are running together, too.

"The time's coming when the Amsterdammers won't be any different than the Rotterdamers," he said.

Cows, now so important to Holland, will be kept in zoos, for there will be no farm land for them. A father trying to tell his young son of his glorious days on the farm will be startled to hear his son say: "What's a farm, Daddy?" "He'll say it's a place out in the country."

"What's 'country,' Daddy?" will come next.

That's the danger—we're going to lose the locale for the stories of life on the farm. Shouldn't all us ex-farm boys form a society to preserve the farm?

We could explain how desperately we miss it, stopping the pigs, milking the cows, all that. A little lie like that never hurt anybody.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH

Sonny Liston would be perfect for the Mitch Miller show. When he asks you to sing along—you sing along!

WISH I'D SAID THAT: At 20 the average young man thinks he can stick to his ideals; at 40 he just hopes he can stick to his budget.

EARL'S PEARLS

News- paper ad: "Man with small sports car wishes to meet owner of small sports car. Object: To share parking meter."

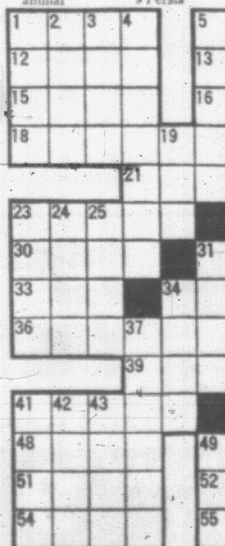

There's a super-secret project at Cape Canaveral, reports Bob Orben. It's a screwdriver with a handle 5,000 miles long—for fixing missiles with second stages that don't work . . . That's earl, brother.

MISS PEACH

U.K. to Join 20th Century on Weights, Measures

LONDON (CP) — Scruples, perches and drachms are on the way out, and a pound of butter won't be as heavy. Confused? Scruples, perches and drachms are little-used terms for weights and measures and the British government thinks their elimination will make life easier for Britons.

They are being abolished, along with such terms as poles, bushels and pecks in a move to modernize British weights and measures. In the process, a pound will become a little lighter and a yard a little longer. But the new weights and measures act is fraught with ramifications. Think what will happen to school texts that have baffled children for centuries by asking them about pecks and rods. Mathematics will be a lot simpler, that's for sure. The simplification of terminology is considered a minor part of the new act. The main purpose is to protect consumers by forcing manufacturers to specify the weight or capacity of their products and to standardize measures. British officials have become increasingly conscious of simplicity over the last few years. The Fahrenheit scale with its boiling point of 212 degrees and freezing point of 32 has already been replaced by the more logical centigrade scale. There even is talk of eliminating the maze-like British currency system in favor of a decimal coinage. Rods, poles and perches—all equivalent to 30 1/4 square yards—are gone. Bushel, peck, pennyweight, scruple and drachm are expected to disappear in five years. An interesting sidelight to the act is its requirements for measuring whisky in pubs. Specified measures are one-quarter, one-fifth and one-sixth of a gill. A gill is one-quarter of a pint. The publican will have to display a sign stating which measure he is using.

NDP GOES INTO COURT

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Manitoba New Democratic Party says it will attempt to obtain a court order prohibiting the Communist party from "leading organized support to NDP candidates in the Dec. 11 provincial election."

Alistair Stewart, an NDP spokesman, said the restraining order from the court is planned "to prevent the Communists from planting the kiss of death on some of our candidates."

LONDON—Eve gave Adam an apricot—not an apple—in the Garden of Eden, says one of Britain's top botanists.

The Biblical belief in the apple as the fruit of temptation was challenged Monday by Dr. Tatham Whitehead, retired lecturer in botany at Bangor University in Wales.

"The apple is not a native of Mesopotamia," he said in an interview.

The Garden of Eden is reputed to have been in Mesopotamia.

"The only edible fruits they had there in the days of the Biblical story were the apricot and the quince."

"Since Adam is said to have eaten the fruit with which Eve tempted him, it certainly would not have been a quince (a hard, acid, pear-shaped fruit used as a preserve)."

"The simple deduction therefore is that the fruit Adam most likely ate was an apricot."

BALTIMORE—Rennie Marks went to court to make sure his name will be first on the voting machine. He officially adopted "Aabach" as his last name. He is a candidate for city council next spring. Names are listed alphabetically.

LA PAZ, Bolivia—Political circles here were in turmoil today because of the unprecedented challenge by a petite congress woman to a leader of the government party to meet her in a duel to the death.

The executive committee of the governing National Revolutionary Movement (MNR) called an emergency meeting to discuss 33-year-old Rosa Lema Dolz's challenge to provincial MNR leader Armando Bascope, who expelled her from the party for "lack of discipline."

An estimated 450 women, with their children, went on a hunger strike in token support for the fiery, 4-foot-11-inch congress woman.

Bascope is not known to have replied to Mrs. Dolz's challenge. She charged Monday night that he is afraid to meet her because he knows she is a crack shot.

"If he won't duel, I'll kill him anyway," she said.

TEHRAN, Iran—Tehran's police chief, Col. Abdolali Vassiq, banned the Twist to teenagers Monday after secret police raided a teen-age Twist striptease party organized by a local movie house. Police said they consider the Twist "harmful for teenagers."

HOLLYWOOD—"Would you believe it if I told you that I went outside and found Steve Allen sitting up in a tree and a chimpanzee seated in my flower garden?"

This and other complaints were aired Monday by residents in the neighborhood where comedian Allen tapes his television show.

A delegation of about 50 persons, who live near the Steve Allen playhouse in the heart of Hollywood appeared before the city board of public works to complain about "noise, confusion, nuisance and blocking of traffic" late at night when part of the television show is taped outside the playhouse.

One resident complained she constantly had to clean up her lawn after the show, and objected to animals—such as horses, mules and even chimps—used in the show.

The board bowed to the resident requests and appointed two members to "police" the taping sessions.

OXFORD, Eng.—Laurence Reed, 24, resigned Monday as treasurer of the all-male Oxford University Union after members defeated his campaign to win full membership for women students.

OKVILLE, Ont.—Peter Strickland may keep his crocodiles, alligators and caymans, Oakville town council decided Monday night.

Mr. Strickland's neighbors in fashionable Falgarwood Hills subdivision of Oakville claimed the reptiles in his basement were terrorizing the neighborhood.

Last week council gave first reading to a bylaw that would prohibit the keeping "of certain animals," reptiles included. But councillors voted unanimously Monday night not to give it second reading.

Councillor McLean Anderson, who moved that the bylaw not be given second reading, said, "I am perturbed that this gentleman has been persecuted because he refused to accept conformity."

Mr. Strickland said last week he was fired from his job because "my neighbors' attitude placed such pressure on me I couldn't work."

He said he is preparing a book on the growth rate of the reptiles. They vary in length from a few inches to four feet and are kept in concrete pens in his basement.

Prices paid for fuel and lubricants varied. One department bought lubricating oil for $2 a gallon, another was paying 47 cents.

The commission was critical of the government for not utilizing bulk purchasing which could produce "significant savings." On automobiles it said, this could run to $300 or $600.

There was little or no control over warehouse stocks. The commission found, about 40,000 people—the equivalent of one-third of Canada's total service personnel—were involved in the materials management function of the armed forces.

"For every three members of the armed forces, one person works in a materials management function, of whom 65 per cent are civilians," the commission reported.

The commission thought that the stocks carried by both defence and civilian departments were far too high.

Of the civilian stockpiling the commission said:

"The average 63 months' stock carried by departments appears to be much too high."

Of defence stockpiling the commission said:

"Seventy-three per cent of the stocks on hand would exceed five years' requirements and, assuming no further purchases, 29 per cent of the present inventories would still be on hand at the end of 25 years."

ELIMINATE WASTE

The commission said it was aware that in some cases remaining stocks on hand were of the Second World War vintage and this contributed to overstockpiling. But it emphasized that great savings could be made by proper inventory control and better ordering systems.

The confusion was that defence production as the new purchasing force could do much towards eliminating waste.

The report said savings could be achieved too, if purchase forms, contracts and the like were standardized. Many warehouses across the country could be eliminated.

It also recommended that the Crown Assets Disposal Corporation be placed in the new purchasing department to handle sale of surplus items.

The commission also says the government has gone overboard on some aspects of its job in moving employees and materials around the country and the world.

It takes a particularly hard look at the RCAF's Air Transport Command.

The report charts the sharp growth of this air fleet, noting that its capacity now may rival that of Trans-Canada Air Lines and that it flies more overseas miles than TCA.

"This large and growing volume of traffic and the high incidence of scheduled flying by the Air Transport Command probably are disturbing to commercial carriers, whether their interest be air, sea or land transportation."

Turning to shipping, the report says the government has about 600 vessels of "almost every conceivable kind, from an aircraft carrier and ice-breakers to sailing dinghies, outboard motorboats and canoes."

No Softening Of Castro's Stand-Mikoyan

RUGGED LIFE as an archaeologist is experience of Princess Margaret of Denmark. Working with a UN Scandinavian expedition to save Nubian monuments from an area to be flooded in the Sudan she gets up at 5 a.m. to be on the job by 6.

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan said Monday night sharp differences over Cuba still exist between the United States and Russia. He indicated there was no softening of Fidel Castro's stand.

The Kremlin trouble-shooter talked to reporters after attending a dinner Acting Secretary-General U Thant gave for U.S. and Soviet negotiators on the Cuban crisis. Mikoyan returned to New York Monday after a 24-day visit to Havana.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson, who also attended the dinner, said he expects to resume discussions on Cuba Wednesday with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov. Stevenson said he expected the meeting to be "quite important."

Mikoyan said "very sharp questions" were discussed at the dinner with Stevenson and John J. McCloy, head of President Kennedy's Cuban co-ordinating committee.

"But there was no quarrelling," the Soviet leader said.

Mikoyan said the possibility of his going to Washington for a meeting with Kennedy was not discussed.

BACKS CASTRO PLAN

In his talk with reporters Mikoyan came out strongly for Castro's five-point demands, including U.S. withdrawal from Guantanamo naval base and an end to the U.S. economic boycott of Cuba. But Stevenson said the Castro demands were not discussed at the dinner.

Mikoyan also praised the Cuban government's offer Monday to allow UN inspection of Soviet withdrawal of offensive weapons from Cuba in return for the dismantling—under UN inspection—of bases in the United States, Puerto Rico and elsewhere from which anti-Castro exiles are operating against the Cuban regime.

The state department brushed off the Cuban proposal.

Thant was reported urging the United States and the Soviet Union to go before the Security Council with a joint statement closing out the current phase of the Cuban crisis.

OTTAWA (UPI)—Social Credit member of Parliament Gilles Giguere, today demanded the resignation of Canadian National Railways president Donald Gordon "in the general interest of the country."

Giguere, MP for Lapointe, Que., issued the demand in a letter made public after he was refused permission to read it into the record of the Commons sessional committee on railways.

While Giguere criticized the publicly-owned CNR for its approach to branch-line abandonment and acquisition of private trucking firms, he centred his attack on Gordon on the absence of a French-Canadian from the railway's 28 top officials.

"Questioned on that anomaly, Mr. Gordon demonstrated arrogance and showed his complete dislike regarding the bilingual side of Canada," Giguere charged. "His answers did not satisfy anybody and indicated a certain sense of irresponsibility and incompetence that we cannot approve of from one of Canada's most senior officials."

"For these reasons we believe that is in the general interest of the country that Mr. Gordon resign his duties and I ask today for his resignation."

$2 MILLION PLANE CRASH SUIT

'Liquidation' Plot Charged

NEW YORK (AP)—The husband of a plane crash victim filed a $2,000,000 suit Monday, charging a Cuban government agent plotted a bomb aboard the aircraft to "liquidate" one of that government's henchmen.

The suit was filed by Arnaldo Ruiz of Manhattan, whose wife was killed Jan. 5, 1960, when a National Airlines plane crashed near Bolivia, N.C.

Ruiz had started suit against the airline and others earlier. He filed a motion Monday asking that the Republic of Cuba be added to the list of defendants.

Aaron J. Broder, his lawyer, said "I have now been informed and believe that on or about Jan. 5, 1960, an agent of the Republic of Cuba was directed to place an explosive charge on this plane for the purpose of destroying it."

"This agent succeeded in placing this explosive charge on other combustible matter on the plane, causing it to crash."

The purpose, the lawyer added, "was the liquidation of a henchman of the Republic of Cuba."

The intended victim and the person charged with planting the bomb were not named. In all, 29 persons were killed.

What everyone should know about term insurance!

Term, or temporary, life insurance has many uses—but watch out for possible abuses.

Just as Fire Insurance pays only in the event of fire loss during the life of the policy, so Term Insurance pays only in the event of death before the term expires.

Often The Excelsior Life man will recommend Term Insurance—but only as a temporary coverage where the maximum amount of immediate protection is needed for the least amount of premium. And he endeavours to make certain that this temporary life insurance is converted into permanent personal policies as soon as the owner is able to do so.

There is no equity in Term Insurance which can carry the policy if a due date is missed, and none which builds future security for its owner.

We suggest that you talk to The Excelsior Life representative in your community. He has been selected and trained to help you with all your life insurance problems—and especially assist you to design your own "Blueprint for Security".

$1 Million Building Announced

A $1,000,000 seven-storey office building will be built next year on the southwest corner of Douglas and Fort. It was announced this afternoon by H. Clark Bentall, president of Dominion Construction Co. Ltd.

To be known as the Bentall Building, it should be ready for occupancy by February, 1964. Dominion Construction is the contractor.

The ground floor will be occupied by the Toronto-Dominion Bank and by James Richardson & Sons Ltd. The entire sixth floor has been taken by the legal firm of Crease & Co.

The building will be the most modern in Victoria, said Mr. Bentall. It will go up on the present site of McEwen's Restaurant.

Winnipeg Bombers Arrive In Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—Winnipeg Blue Bombers, last year's Grey Cup winners, arrived in Toronto at 1:25 p.m. today for this year's final against Hamilton Tiger-Cats. (See earlier, page 12.)

Tripucka to Get Owens' Job?

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Free Press says Steve Owen is probably on the way-out as head coach of the Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Frank Tripucka, a former quarterback with the Western Football Conference club, was named as a possible successor.

The newspaper story by sports editor Maurice Smith said: "Owen will probably not be back next year" as coach.

It said that Tripucka admitted receiving "feelers" for Owen's job.

Pilotage Probe to Open Dec. 21

OTTAWA (CP)—The newly appointed royal commission on Canadian marine pilotage problems will hold its first preliminary public hearing here Dec. 21 and will probably begin its formal hearings at Halifax and Sydney, N.S., in January, it was announced today.

Dysentery Kills Alberta Babies

FORT VERMILION, Alta. (CP)—At least six babies have died during an epidemic of dysentery which has crowded hospitals in northern Alberta with infant patients since July, health officials reported today.

Flood conditions which forced surface water into domestic water supplies were blamed for the outbreak.

'End Manoeuvring On Columbia'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Works Minister Fulton has called on Premier Bennett to end what he described as manoeuvring over Columbia River hydro project negotiations.

Green Denies Aiding U.S. In Talks

External Affairs Minister Howard Green was quoted by Canadian Press from Ottawa Monday night as calling "a complete untruth" a remark attributed to Premier Bennett about Mr. Green's stand on the Columbia River project.

The report carried by the national news service after Mr. Bennett's press conference Monday stated Mr. Bennett claimed Mr. Green was helping the United States in the three-way negotiations.

It stated the Premier said that Mr. Green had told the U.S. state department it can get a better price on downstream power than that suggested by B.C.

It went on to say that he said: "Mr. Green keeps saying the premier of British Columbia will give in."

Mr. Green, in denying the report, is quoted as saying it "has all the earmarks of an alibi."

The Times, which attended Mr. Bennett's press conference, did not carry a report of his remarks about Mr. Green, other than to say the only opposition he expected to his latest plan for the Columbia was from Mr. Green and W. H. Herdridge, the NDP member for Kootenay West.

Mr. Bennett labeled his further remarks about Mr. Green's position as "off the record."

Freeze On Debts Proposed

By JOHN MIKA

Mayor R. B. Wilson today said the city is not seeking to pool its debt with Saanich but would like to see a study made on amalgamation.

He suggested the present debt could be "frozen" with each municipality responsible for its existing debt load.

This was only one of the points that could be studied in a survey of possible amalgamation terms.

But he emphasized that the city is not sold on amalgamation yet and has only been authorized to investigate the question before a deciding vote is taken.

Mayor Wilson broke his silence on the Saanich amalgamation furore after being aroused by some anti-amalgamationist statements deriding the city.

DEBT 'SADDLED'

"Much has been made by some speakers of the possibility of Saanich being 'saddled' with Victoria's debt," he said.

"Possibly the most logical approach to this would be for the present debts to be 'frozen' and attached where they are at the present time.

"Victoria would have no trouble in servicing and liquidating its present debt by 1975."

The mayor pointed out that when considering debt one also had to take account of assets and in this sphere Victoria has physical assets totalling $25,000,000 while Saanich has assets of only $8,700,000.

NOT PROVEN

"As far as I know, it has yet to be proven that amalgamation would be in the financial interest of the city of Victoria.

"The city's finances are in very good shape."

He pointed out since 1950 Victoria has reduced its debt by 38 per cent while Saanich has quadrupled its debt.

"In fact, if the present trends continue and we have every reason to believe they will, within five or six years the city's debt will be less than that of Saanich," the mayor said.

He pointed out that the city's outside parks, totalling thousands of acres, at Thetis, Elk and Beaver Lakes and Mount Douglas are essential to the whole community but probably never will be developed fully if there is not some form of amalgamation.

The mayor also noted that the Deutsch report predicted savings of hundreds of thousands of dollars over the years to taxpayers of both municipalities by elimination of duplicate services.

"As far as the city is concerned, it does not require a referendum at this time," he concluded.

"City council has unanimously agreed to a study of this question and amalgamation could not take place without."

WANTED: COMMISSION FOR ZEBALLOS

(See also page 26)

ZEBALLOS (CP)—The village commission is assured of a chairman, but it's a little short of commissioners.

Stanley Jones was elected chairman by acclamation Monday, but there were no nominations for the three empty seats on the commission.

"We're not certain what we're going to do," Mrs. Van Koughnett, the village clerk, said today. "We'll just tell Victoria and let them handle it."

QUEEN TRIES HER CROWN

Preparing for debut planned for 1:30 p.m. Wednesday at VMD's Outer Wharf plant, Mv. Queen of Saanich undergoes last-minute primping prior to her "going-in" party. Latest B.C. Toll Authority ferry will be christened by Mrs. John Tisdale with about 200 invited guests present.

Medicare Legislation Promised by Ontario

TORONTO (CP)—Medical health insurance from medical insurance bill go into effect, the speech said, the legislation will be examined by a committee of medical, hospital, labor and other representatives. The committee would receive representations from any interested party.

In addition, the government would accept responsibility for providing coverage for those persons who "may be deemed not to be able to provide for themselves."

Before any consideration can be given to benefits broader than those mentioned, the report of the federal royal commission on health must be examined.

BOY FINDS DOLLAR BILL—DOLLAR BILL FINDS FUND

Six-year-old Brent Foxall became rich unexpectedly the other day. He found a $1 bill on his way home from school.

But his mother, Mrs. Ronald Foxall, did not want him to keep the money. She suggested he give it to the Times appeal for "Friendship Dollars for India."

He thought that was a good idea.

So when his older sister Wendy, seven, came home, he got her to write a letter for him to the Times. Here it is:

"To the children of India, 'I found $1 on the way home from school, and we would like to give it to you for food. Have a Merry Christmas."

Love, Brent Foxall."

Then, says Mrs. Foxall, her suggestion snowballed. Wendy wanted to give her weekly allowance to the appeal also. So she added to the letter "He is from my sister Wendy."

Four-year-old Matthew decided to kick in too. It was recorded in the letter also.

"Two cents from Matt."

The letter, together with the money stuck with Scotch tape to a piece of cardboard, arrived at the Times today.

It is one of many small donations rolling in in response to the Times appeal.

Brazilian Jet Hits Mountain

LIMA, Peru (AP)—A Brazilian jet liner with 97 persons aboard, crashed into mountains south of Lima today, the Peruvian aviation ministry reported.

The chief of the aeronautics service said wreckage had been sighted near Ciudad de Dios, 20 miles south of Lima.

The plane was a Boeing 707 of Varig Airlines.

The 707 had radioed to Lima Airport a few minutes before it disappeared while coming in for landing.

The plane was bound from Brazil to Los Angeles, with intermediate stops scheduled in Peru, Colombia, Panama and Mexico. Varig said it carried 80 passengers, nine of them bound for Los Angeles.

The $5,000,000 plane carried a crew of 17.

Among passengers reported by Varig to be aboard were Raul Cepero Bonilla, economic adviser to Cuban Premier Castro and president of the Cuban National Bank, and the Peruvian minister of agriculture, Jesus Melgar, with his wife. They had been attending a regional meeting of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization in Rio de Janeiro.

Varig is one of South America's most progressive airlines, with a fleet of 707s. It operates flights between New York and Brazil, as well as in Brazil. In the last year or so it took over the international operations of the Brazilian Real Line and started flights to Los Angeles.

ARMED FORCES

Stocks Under Fire

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Royal Canadian Navy has in its stockpiles enough wool and cotton suits of one size to last more than 1,000 years.

The Royal Canadian Air Force has stockpiled sufficient quantities of a certain type of electric light bulb to meet its requirements for 270 years.

The Canadian Army's inventory contains 197 years' supply of men's plain black cotton overalls, size one.

These staggering examples of excessive buying of military supplies are cited by the Glasco Royal Commission in its report on supporting services for government issued Tuesday.

It proposes that the federal government establish a central purchasing agency to economize on its ordering. Commercially oriented crown corporations would be exempt. (See also page 15.)

The Royal Commission also recommended that the existing defence production department, now responsible for all of Canada's defence buying, be renamed the purchasing and supply department and be given the additional job of procurement for civilian departments and agencies.

BIG BUSINESS

Government buying is big business in Canada. It totals more than $1,000,000,000 a year, according to the commission.

"No other organization in Canada rivals the government in the wide range of its annual purchases, in the scale of its warehousing requirements, or in the value of its purchases," said the report.

The purchases vary from paper clips and pencils to ice breakers and jet aircraft, from missiles to school books and from gasoline to milk. Four fifths of the total purchases are for the national defence department.

The commission discovered a general lack of uniformity in the government's purchasing policy. Costs were piled up because of unnecessary red tape. Patronage entered into purchasing decisions. Pressure was employed to influence.

'India's Eyes Opened' By Invasion

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Prime minister Nehru said tonight the Communist Chinese invasion of northern India opened India's eyes and the country will never again be caught in a trap.

Speaking at a civic reception for visiting West German President Luebeck, Nehru strongly indicated India would turn down Chinese peace proposals.

He said India must be prepared for a long struggle and might have to learn new fighting techniques.

"But there can be no question of our tolerating this aggression or being bowed down by China," he said.

Improve Your Self-Portrait With Artist's Make-Up Kit

By PENNY SAVER

I've never thought of my face as a canvas on an easel, but after looking more closely in the mirror I could see the resemblance. It certainly could do with a good paint job. No doubt that is what the manufacturer had in mind when he designed a make-up kit to look like an artist's palette.

Brushes, paints, mixing well and pencils, what more does an artist need? All this in a dainty case about 5" long and only $7.95. The mirror on the inside lid indicates it really is for personal use and not for the artist.

Another item that sells for the same price is more decorative than practical. This is a lipstick holder that will hold six tubes of lipstick and will enhance any dressing table. It looks like it might have adorned the dressing table of Marie Antoinette.

If you are one of those practical creatures, like Penny, and always have to say "what's it good for?" you will be more interested in the satin brocade gift items. They add a touch of glamor to the practical.

Have you ever wondered what you could give a friend who was leaving for a vacation in England? Don't wonder any longer—give them an oriental brocade hot water bottle cover. I can't think of anything for $2.50 that would be appreciated more, except maybe one with a hot water bottle inside.

For those not so fortunate as to be going on a trip you could brighten up their bridge season with a red satin brocade bridge case for $1.20.

And still more practical are large cotton square scarfs with an oriental pattern in subtle tones for $1.25 each. Buy two, stitch them together and you have a blouse. It has all the qualities we are always looking for—attractive, inexpensive and easy to make.

Interested? Phone Penny at 382-3131.

DEAR ABBY . . .

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Every night after school (and on Saturdays) I work in my father's bakery shop. Lately I have started to eat everything in sight. I know I am gaining weight, but I can't stop eating. I suppose I eat so much because it is free. I am 15 and have never had a date. Do you think my weight has something to do with it? I know chocolate makes my skin break out, but I can't leave that alone, either.

"NO WILLPOWER." DEAR NO: I could scold you, but it wouldn't help. You need to scold yourself. Writing to me was the first step. It proves that you are unhappy with yourself. The bakery goods are not "free"—you are paying for them in the most expensive way: popularity, good looks and self-approval. LAY OFF!

DEAR ABBY: Is there a way to tell a dear friend, without hurting her, that I do not wish to talk to her child on the telephone? I seldom call her for that reason. But she calls me often and puts the child on the telephone the moment I say "Hello."

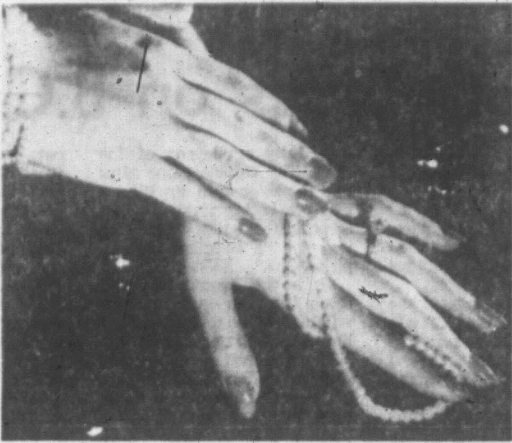

BE SMART—

Color contrasts add a brighter dimension of interest to the new accessory collections. Sleek chamois gloves are softly cuffed in brown leather and trimmed with black braid. A nifty blackskin handbag combines black and beige in an unusual twisting pattern to spell personality plus.

SALADA FOODS . . . good taste for your family

Pearl Farming, an Art

From the very beginning when women wore an adornment, pearls have held a special place in the realms of jewels. Although not as durable as gemstones, their remarkable lustrous properties have captured the imagination of all races, both past and present. Today the cultured pearl carries on the tradition.

It takes years and great skill to produce a pearl. The operation starts with a man who breeds oysters and when they have grown to their prime, passes them on to a "farmer." The farmer then places a round mother-of-pearl bead into the body of the oyster; this is an extremely difficult operation akin to the delicate surgical technique as practised in our hospitals. This operation complete, the oyster is housed in a cage and put back in the water. Skilful people have to keep a constant watch; too much variation in the water temperature can quickly kill the oysters and they are moved periodically to different vicinities to maintain a correct temperature. They are also regularly cleaned to keep them healthy. Even with this great care, it is only a small percentage of oysters that produce pearls suitable for use as jewelry.

MATURING PROCESS. When the oysters have been in the water for the required number of years (depending on what quality the farmer is trying to obtain) the harvesting begins and the processing and sorting commences. Trained girls blend and match colors and qualities to make the necklets that we see in jeweler's selection.

Value of the pearl is decided by the following: Its lustre, size, shape, color and cleanliness. If the pearl possesses the best of all these, then you have a very rare pearl which is naturally expensive.

The lustre of the pearl depends on the thickness of the coating and the longer the pearl is left in the water, the better the lustre should be. Against this, however, it must be remembered that the longer it is left in the water, the greater chance that the oyster will die, the pearl can become misshapen, spotted or a bad color.

DIFFERENT SHAPES. All pearls are not round. For various reasons, which it is impossible to determine, some pearls are slightly oval or pear-shaped and a large quantity are misshapen or what we call "baroque." These do not command the same price as a round pearl.

Color is largely a matter of taste. The most expensive color is white with a light rose tinge or very light cream with a rose tinge. The various countries in the world prefer different colors but in a general way, the two colors mentioned are the most sought after and, therefore, the most expensive. The production of these pearls is very small.

A perfectly clean pearl is very rare and if you examine a pearl carefully, you will see in most cases there are some spots or imperfections. Some pearls are, of course, very badly spotted but if the pearl has a thick coating and consequently, a high lustre, its spottedness will not detract from its attraction.

Pearls are a regular part of a jeweler's stock and there is no doubt that they will continue to be so. Pearls can be worn on any occasion; they are always correct.

TODAY'S RECIPE

IRISH STEW

Six large potatoes, peeled and cut into 1½ inch cubes, 2 teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, 6 large onions (sliced), 2½ lbs. lean boneless lamb cut into 1-inch cubes, 2 cups water.

In a heavy saucepan, place a layer of potatoes and sprinkle with a little salt and pepper. Add a layer of onions and again season. Place a layer of lamb on top of this and season. Repeat until all of the ingredients are used up. The top layer should consist of potatoes. Pour the water over it and cover. Bring to boil and cook over low heat for 1½ hours, or until the lamb is tender. (If desired, carrots and celery can be added in additional layers).

The Irish stew, when celery and carrots are added, is a complete course, but, if an extra vegetable is needed, Lima beans blend in extremely well.

Men, Too, Find Loss of Weight Aids Good Health

I never forget the men, God bless them, and sometimes I even write about them. As a matter of fact, I am continually surprised by the number of men who read my column.

Of course I write about many subjects which interest the brawny, as well as the fair sex. Information concerning health, mental viewpoint, nutrition and longevity is valuable to both men and women.

Women are more likely to reduce for appearance's sake than men, but with today's knowledge of the hazards of overweight, men have become increasingly interested in slimming down.

With heart trouble a number one threat to men and obesity an important ally of heart trouble, a man is flitting with danger if he does not banish those extra burdening pounds. Men, like women, fall heir to so many wonderful by-products of weight loss, too. All sorts of minor disabilities disappear and energy is greatly increased. There is a feeling of well being which is lacking before. Overweight places a strain on the whole man or woman and also points up any physical weaknesses one may have.

Sometimes it takes a quick loss of a few pounds to encourage an individual to continue calorie counting. This is true of men as well as women. A man requires more calories than a woman, even when reducing, because of his greater stature. Most men lose successfully on 1,000 to 1,800 calories daily.

As a before Christmas holiday help I offered my Nine Day Reducing Diet yesterday to my feminine readers. Today I offer my Tubby Hubby Diet to men. This gives a man a loss of from seven to 12 pounds in 12 days time. If you would like to have this diet send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Strachan Asks Cease-Fire by Both Sides on B.C.'s Labor Front

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan Monday night in Dunsmuir issued a plea for a "cease-fire" on B.C.'s labor front.

"I am publicly calling for a halt to any and all inflammatory statements or actions by editorial writers, by labor, by management and especially by some of our less responsible politicians," Mr. Strachan told a Chamber of Commerce meeting.

The New Democratic Party leader also condemned some trade unionists for recent statements.

He blamed violence in B.C.

Mr. Strachan's speech followed a statement by Premier Bennett earlier Monday blaming the NDP for unrest in the labor field.

Mr. Strachan said the NDP doesn't and shouldn't interfere in trade union affairs. "Nor do unions interfere with the NDP."

"But this does not prevent me from saying quite bluntly that some of the statements made in recent weeks by a few trade unionists can only hurt the cause of labor in B.C."

"Such statements get no support from me nor the NDP."

Mr. Strachan did not identify these trade unionists.

He said he had warned in 1960 and 1961 that B.C. legislation would foster labor strife. But at the same time there is never any excuse for violence by either side in a dispute.

"In this province as elsewhere in North America we have reactionaries of the far right and radicals of the far left. Both of these groups are extremists and neither of them is interested in promoting peace and understanding in the field of labor-management relations."

The agitators of the far right are responsible for pushing through the legislation that destroyed the possibilities of industrial peace in B.C.

"This legislation created the conditions and the climate which allowed the schemers of the far left to move in and promote discord and violence."

Mr. Strachan said that recent violence at the strike-bound Allied Engineering plant in Vancouver was not caused by employees of the firm. The trouble came after the employer won an injunction preventing picketing. Mr. Strachan said this opened the way for "a so-called citizens' picket line."

"It is this procedure which opens the door to a few provocateurs to be present and deliberately initiate violence."

Mr. Strachan said the only way to challenge B.C.'s laws is through the courts; the only way to change them is in the legislature.

"I admit that with our present government it is sometimes difficult to get into court to challenge the laws, and impossible to overcome their one-sided majority in the legislature until the next election changes that."

"We strengthen the hand of those who desire labor-management strife when the attorney-general of B.C. consults only with the Vancouver Board of Trade."

"What is required is government leadership to remove the provocative cause of the unrest."

ROBERT STRACHAN

VICTORIA, B.C., TUESDAY, NOV. 27, 1962—PAGE 17

ARTHUR MAYSE

Picking up where we left off on Saturday, the list of presents which people would like to get but rarely do has grown by several items.

It now includes a five-gallon crock with lid, a sack of African violet earth, enough clothespins (plastic) to fill a stocking, and a compartmented drawer divider.

Among less tangible gifts yearned for is a month of solid sunshine, a request which we pass on with a hearty endorsement to weatherman Bill Mackie.

Then there's the commuter whose Christmas would be enriched if someone undertook to smooth out the Pat Bay Highway right-hand lane from the Royal Oak intersection.

Nuisance and dangerous, says he, and rendered more so by a mushy shoulder.

Also to hand is a plea from a hard-pressed government information officer, who says the best gift Victoria's essay-writing students could make him would be a more specific notion of what's needed when they write in for material.

No more letters like this of last week, he begs.

"Dear Sir:

"Please send me everything on British Columbia."

In this matter of student essays, I've often wished the juveniles who frequent our place would write the way they talk.

It charms me, for instance, to hear a school casually referred to as "The Rock," and to learn that standard nomenclature for Julius Caesar is "Big Julie."

But let the kids take ballpoint in hand, and what then of the fine, free-wheeling diction, the words and phrases keyed to their staccato generation? Gone out the window, to be replaced by grudging, drudging paragraphs that plod woodenly to the ordained word-count but not a syllable beyond.

At rare intervals, though—generally when some teacher deals out a topic that snarls the imagination—the young forget to change gears. When this happens, the results can surprise and even delight.

I read one such essay which had the told-tale quality of folk lore, another that took one of childhood's vague terrors and dished it up as an authentic spine-tingler.

Perhaps the best to come my way was titled "My Car," written by a boy who didn't own a set of wheels and wouldn't for years. But out of wishful thinking and detailed knowledge, he did a piece worth reading.

Mixed sparingly among the unwilling victims of the assigned essay are the writers of the future. Being wise, these white crows do all in their power to conceal the color of their plumage. But it shows, and the English teacher to whom it is revealed will forgive these potential scribes anything.

Even Big Julie.

If you happen to have one of these budding writers in your family, it's best to insist that he learn some other, and preferably non-related trade. This won't interfere with his ambitions in the least, and will give him an anchor to windward for which he will bless you later.

Don't praise his efforts too lavishly, since that tactic can harm him more than any amount of criticism, and don't try to push him faster than his own pace dictates.

As for writers' courses, classes, groups and conferences, they're sometimes great fun and the best can help, but not really very much. In the end, the business boils down to one unaided person sticking a blank sheet in a typewriter (two, if you want your machine to last) and doing his best to clothe his notions with words.

A final observation: writers grow rather than learn. Like all growth, a seed is required. If it isn't there, no outside agency can plant it.

ANTIQUE, BUT STILL NEAT

Well over a century old but still capable of stitching a fine seam is this sewing machine accepted as a trade-in by Eaton's. It was manufactured by Wilcox Clark, U.S. firm that vanished from the industrial scene

TAX CEILING, AUTOMATION

Oak Bay Planks Revealed

A ceiling on taxes and institution of automated methods are two election planks voiced by Oak Bay council candidates preparing to meet ratepayers next month.

Brief statements were made by the five last-day entrants to the annual municipal council race, making a total of eight men contesting three vacancies.

All but one are newcomers to the field.

Alex Hendry, secretary of Victoria Plywood, said Oak Bay has been progressive in the past, but "with rising costs today, councillors must anticipate, put in new machinery and up-to-date methods."

Asked about amalgamation, he said he felt unqualified to speak "at this time," preferring to study the question more closely.

REVISION

He does favor a revision of the system of making per capita grants to municipalities, in view of increased provincial revenues, and would like the province to assume more responsibility for education.

Postal clerk G. F. Kenny was definite about amalgamation—"no."

He is concerned, too, about rising taxes, which he feels must be kept down or people on limited incomes—especially those who have helped to build the municipality—will be forced out.

"Lots of old couples are having a struggle getting by," he said.

'UTTER DISGRACE'

"Zoning needs attention—it's an utter disgrace"—Mr. Kenny said.

He would re-establish the municipal playground program and erect a number of swimming pools in parks, rather than construct a recreation centre.

William James Cull, now retired, is making a third try for council. He supports a recreation centre, close check on spending and less money for education.

Joseph McAllister, operator of a plumbing business, supports the idea of cheaper housing for the aged, plus recreation facilities for all.

Private investigator Conrad Watling is interested in recreation facilities and establishment of a vocational training school in Greater Victoria.

John P. Johnson, music store proprietor, and incumbents John Watts and Fred Robinson, also are candidates, having filed papers last week.

Cleric's Wife Dies in Ontario

Mrs. G. R. Easter, wife of Rev. G. R. Easter, pastor of First Baptist Church in Victoria for 17 years, died in Kitchener-Waterloo Hospital Saturday at the age of 62.

She suffered two strokes. After cremation, interment will take place in the family plot in Hamilton.

She is survived by her husband, Rev. G. R. Easter, pastor of the Preston Baptist Church in Preston, Ont.; a daughter, Mrs. E. Davis of Waterloo, Ont., and a son, J. C. Easter of Tungsten, N.W.T.

BRIEF SEARCH FOR 'LOST' BIOLOGIST

A provincial game biologist was object of a brief "search" after he failed to return from a deer-counting survey in Leechtown area Monday night.

A navy helicopter stood by this morning to fly into Sooke Lake after Don McCaughran, 27, Vancouver Island biologist for the fish and game branch, was noted overdue.

Shawnigan Lake RCMP and game warden Jack Lenfesty went into the desolate region this morning and reported just before noon that they had picked up McCaughran "safe and sound."

A game branch spokesman said there were no details, but he could understand delay due to wet and snowy conditions in the bush.

WALTON ESTATE

Zone Hearing Surprise To Residents

Residents in the vicinity of Lansdowne and Richmond expressed surprise today that Saanich council called a public hearing Monday to consider an application to rezone for garden apartment use the estate of the late G. H. Walton.

They said they didn't know the meeting had been called.

The 1.3-acre property on the southeast corner of Richmond and Lansdowne, was rezoned by council from single-family residence to garden apartment use, following a public hearing.

No one appeared at the hearing to oppose the rezoning application.

FINAL READING

But council ruled that it would not give final reading to the rezoning bylaw until the lands and planning committee complete its recommendations on regulations of garden apartment developments.

Residents, who earlier this year successfully opposed an application to rezone the land for high-rise apartments, said the reason they didn't attend the hearing was because they had no idea it was scheduled.

(Saanich announced the meeting in a small public notice which appeared in local newspapers.)

'LUKEWARM'

The majority of residents were also lukewarm to council's decision to rezone.

"We had no idea a meeting was being held," said Mrs. G. W. Paul, 1895 Lansdowne. "We are vitally interested in the development of the property."

Mrs. G. A. Finestone, 1867 Watson, said a garden apartment type of development would be better than having several box type dwellings on the property.

But, she added, it would all depend how the property was landscaped.

At the public hearing, Avis Walton said the amenities of the property would be preserved.

"The alternative," she said, "is that this can be turned over to someone who will build a bunch of NHA sugar-box houses."

Boulevard Care Plan May Fold

City Considers Service Cut As Tax Revenue Inadequate

City parks committee today scheduled a special meeting to decide whether the boulevard tax should be raised or abolished.

Committee members set the special session for Monday morning next week.

The tax is levied on a relatively small percentage of householders on "improved" boulevards to help pay for special servicing of the city-owned green strips in front of their homes.

The city's problem is that this service costs considerably more than the levy produces in revenue.

During the current year, the city expects to receive about $64,000 from the tax while spending $114,000 on caring for the boulevards.

TREES COSTLY

In addition, it will spend another $26,500 for trees on untaxed boulevards that are not classified as improved and are left to the householders to look after.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood told his colleagues that the city should "drop the tax completely and let everyone look after their own boulevard."

His suggestion undoubtedly will receive close scrutiny at the special meeting along with comments made by aldermen during last spring's budget debates that the present tax should be raised to make the program self-supporting.

Alcoholism Body Seeks Backing

The Vancouver Island Alcoholism Foundation, desperate for funds to set up a clinic in Victoria, is seeking affiliation with a government-backed agency.

James Audain, president of the Island group, said today he has been trying to win the support of the B.C. Alcoholism Foundation, which operates on provincial grants.

The B.C. foundation, set up by the government, gets $125,000 a year.

Mr. Audain said the Island group needs about $8,000 to establish its clinic.

APPEAL STYMIED

So far appeals for funds have been stymied. Government officials have told Mr. Audain he could get some aid if he first gets contributions from the general public.

Public reaction has been that the government-sponsored B.C. foundation should pay for the clinic.

Mr. Audain said the B.C. foundation is provincial in name only.

It has not given any money to the Island group, and only occasionally sends literature and films.

NEED BACKING

"We need all the backing we can get—from anybody," said Mr. Audain.

He made a public appeal for support as this is Alcoholism Information Week in B.C.

He said he is still hopeful that his group can join the B.C. foundation, but this apparently depends on an increase in the government grant.

"At present there is no special treatment available on the Island for alcoholics," said Mr. Audain. His plan is to set up an information office with a consultant to provide assistance to alcoholics and with funds to pay for treatment.

DANCERS UPSET

Keen Pupil Stopped The Music

A man who wanted to take dancing lessons pleaded guilty in city police court today to causing a public disturbance in a downtown dance studio Monday.

Russel W. Pearce, 1319 1/2 Broad, was accused of terrifying girls taking dancing lessons at the Golden Slipper, 1318 Broad, about 8 p.m.

CLASSES STOPPED

Police testified his abnormal dress and actions had disrupted classes in progress.

Pearce was wearing a hunting knife in a sheath at his belt and clothes, "not normal for dancing in," court was told.

He admitted wearing three jackets and a tam-o-shanter to the hall.

He put on dancing slippers to dance with the girls before he was ordered to leave by the management.

He was alleged to have kicked the door on leaving, and struggled with police constables called to the scene, outside the hall.

Pearce contended he had been invited into the hall and had watched the girls dancing for 20 minutes without disturbing anyone.

THREE JACKETS

No one could see the knife because of his three jackets, he claimed.

He said because he was ordered to leave "emphatically," he bowed himself out of the building sarcastically, with a flourish of his tam-o-shanter, pushing the door open with his foot.

Magistrate William Ostler remanded the case to Friday pending reports by probation officer and psychiatrist.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. What Commonwealth prime minister had the longest term of office?

A. William Lyon Mackenzie King of Canada. He served 7,329 days. Ranking second with 7,620 days is Sir Robert Walpole, first prime minister of United Kingdom.

Q. What date was the first Saturday in May, 1910?

S.M.

A. The first Saturday in May of that year fell on the seventh day of the month.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or brain problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

One-Year Term Suspended In Store Theft

Keith C. Cooper, 2835 Rockwell, was fined $75 in city police court today and given a one-year suspended sentence for theft of a frozen chicken from a supermarket.

He pleaded guilty.

Counsel David Hammel asked for leniency in view of the record of the accused in the navy, from which he retired as Commander. He also said the offence was "impulsive."

"I am always very doubtful about the impulsiveness of this kind of thing," Magistrate William Ostler replied.

Hal Malone LOOKS AT SPORTS

The Victoria United dressing room Saturday afternoon bore some resemblance to a choir rehearsal by the Meistersingers after they walked off the edge of the Causeway by mistake.

Water ran down the faces of the main characters and the bit players. It was in their hair, their jerseys, their shorts, their socks and in their unmentionables. What once were clean blue sweaters and white pants now looked like something to make a Chinese laundryman squeal with delight. There were mutterings of "It won't happen again" and "We should have beat them."

One of the players did a fast strip-tease and turned the hot water on in the shower. The steam from it collided with the marsh dampness to create a thick fog.

It was nothing like the gloomy air of the assembly itself. Most of the players sat stonily on the long benches, more disenchanted over their 32 loss to Vancouver Canadians than their damp breeches.

What's a Hole in the Chest?

Wallace Milligan, their coach, elected to play cheerleader. "Come on, boys," he brooded (Scottish coaches don't speak, they brood). "Heads up. We've lost other games and we'll lose again."

The players listened carefully. And kept their heads down. They had wanted to beat Canadians. And they should have. They could have led 3-0 at the half with any kind of luck.

Dave Stothard, their best player this day, blasted a line drive spelled "g-o-a-l." Hans Lee, the Canadians' goalkeeper, didn't agree. He flung his lithe frame at it, nearly got a hole in his chest but kept the ball out.

Twice later, Mel Cooper whistled drives at the Canadians' goal. Lee didn't even see the first one. It hit the post. An inch more to the inside and it was good.

On his second try, Cooper "lost" the defence and went in alone. Lee met him in a Maury Wills sliding into third. No goal.

The fact that Stothard, using his noodle on Ron Jenkins' free kick, put United ahead 1-0 at the half, tended to minimize the goals that should have been.

Frustration Deep As the Gumbo

It hadn't rained up to that point but then it became nasty. So did Norman McLeod. He went along as if there was nothing wrong with Canadians that a few goals would not cure. He was so right.

In due course he limited himself to a few—three. And with the last coming 10 seconds before the timekeeper pulled the trigger on his water pistol went United's chance to hold Canadians to a tie.

Strangely, it wasn't the winning goal that bothered United as much as McLeod's second goal. He was to the right of Barry Sadler, trying to locate Neil McEachnie.

Sadler was covering the short side when McLeod gave the ball a mere flick toward the goalmouth. McEachnie, who does not have webbed feet, never came near it. Neither did Sadler. He stood there, trying to pull his boots out of the gumbo in a sort of tragic-comedy. The more he pulled, the further he sunk. The ball rolled slowly, sedately and surely past him.

Sadler sat there now, a muddy imprint of a shot he had earlier stopped with his face, staring out at visitors.

"You can't imagine," he said, "the feeling of frustration. I saw him kick it. I saw it rolling slowly toward the goal. But when I tried to move, I couldn't..." he shook his head.

Next Time Try Normie for Bait

George Wright took off a boot, turned it upside down, to drain the water. He took off his outer socks, then his inner socks, wrung them like a washer-lady.

"That (censored) McLeod," he said. "Give him an inch—just one inch—and he'll score. Been like that for years. You have to sit on him all the time."

Milligan, unperturbed as ever (I think if somebody told him his house had just burned down he would say "Really? Pity the firemen on a day like this") said: "It never ceases to amaze me how often we lose because of lucky goals."

"I don't want to take anything away from McLeod, you understand, but Barry (Sadler) couldn't do a thing about the second one."

"And then they get the winner on the last kick."

Had there been a United lapse on that one?

"Oh, no," Milligan said quickly. "Their outside left (Ken Ferrier) put the ball over and (Harold Holroyd) headed it down instead of up and away."

"The little man (McLeod) was on it in a flash."

Milligan rubbed his chin. "Ever since I've had this team," he said, "we've had to fight for our goals. There's come easy."

"Maybe that will all change. Surely this cannot go on forever."

Well, maybe not forever, Wallace. But next time United plays Canadians, why don't you get one of your backs to nudge McLeod into one of these deep pools of water on the north side of the field? He's so small one of the fish may think he's bait.

Eagle-Eyed Trio Sparks Optimists

Optimists don't lean on any Tom, Dick or Harry when they want to win a basketball game. They depend on Wayne, Bruce and Rod.

This trio accounted for 45 points Monday as Optimists whipped Warriors 61-51 in a Senior B men's game at Mount View.

Special Meeting Calls Baseballers

An extraordinary general meeting of the Victoria and District Baseball Association will be held in the Jaycee Little League clubhouse (Hillside and Cook) on Dec. 10, at 8 p.m. for the purpose of electing a vice-president.

STEWART ALSO 'HAS A FEELING'

At 25, she is known as "Grandma"—and takes it as a compliment "because so many swimmers are girls from 15 to 18, and they like to use my broad shoulders when they have problems."

Miss Fraser swam the anchor leg Monday in the fantastic 440-metrel relay that saw both England and third-place Canada also crack the former world record for the event.

After taking part in her 31st world record performance, Dawn said "We knew we could do it."

It took several days, but Miss Stewart finally admitted she "has a feeling" she can win a medal—"a gold one, I hope."

"I feel good now," she said. "Our two workouts a day are going well now that the pool temperatures are better."

The first couple of days, Mary seemed to be "bothered by temperature variations. At unheated Hale pool (one of the practise sites) it was too cold, while in one of the shallow practise pools at spectacular Beatty Aquatic Centre, where the competitions will be staged, the water was warm."

With international experience at the 1959 Pan-American Games and the 1960 Rome Olympics behind her, Mary, in her quiet way, has poise in Perth. She's spending her recreation time in the Games village, resting, sleeping, writing letters and studying for her Grade 13 courses at Kitsilano High.

IN VICTORIA Thursday to address Victoria Quarterback Club will be B.C. Lions half-back Willie Fleming (above) and Norm Fieldgate, outstanding linebacker. Luncheon meeting will be held at Tallyho Motel at noon.

WINNER of Charles McDonald Memorial Trophy presented to the individual contributing most to sports in Pacific Command last year, is Lieut.-Col. Douglas Williams (above). Award was presented Monday by Rear-Admiral W. M. Landy, more. Honorable mention went to PO Michael Shymkovich and Sub-Lieut. J. C. Slade.

Junior Bruins Have An Idea About Cellar

Esquimalt Bruins will be in their "home" tonight when they hope to alter the appearance of the Pacific Coast Junior Hockey League cellar.

Bruins entertain second-place Nanaimo at the Sports Centre, starting at 8, and can take over third place with a victory. Esquimalt is a point behind Victoria Cougars heading into tonight's game.

Vegetarian Rose Gathers the Gold

Pair of Bronze Medals Canada's Reward Today

By JACK SULLIVAN
PERTH, Australia (CP)—Murray Rose of Australia, a vegetarian who trains on seaweed and wheat germ, became the first double gold medalist of the British Empire Games today with an easy victory in the men's 400-yard freestyle swim.

Rose's first gold came last week when, as a member of the winning 800-metre, free-style relay team, he helped set a world record.

With no track events on the program, swimming and rowing were in the spotlight. English pairsmen took three of the six gold medals in rowing and one of the three swimming finals.

Australia won two swimming golds and one in rowing and New Zealand oarsmen picked up two rowing golds.

Canada took two bronze medals in the day's events—one for a third place in the four without cox and the other in epee team fencing.

The University of British Columbia fours, Canada's only survivor in the rowing finals,

England Dominates Pairs Events

England also picked up a pair of gold medals in the double sculls and coxless pairs, also in record times. In each event, New Zealand was the runner-up for the silver medal while Australia won the bronze for third.

The UBC coxless four—stroked by Eldon Worobieff of Vancouver with Tommy Gray of Vancouver No. 3, Tom Stokes of Richmond, B.C., No. 2, and Roy McIntosh of Vancouver, bow—were three-quarters of a length behind the second-place Welsh boat.

Sandy Gilchrist of Ocean Falls, B.C., clipped almost five seconds from the best time he has ever done for the distance and placed fourth behind Rose and two other Australians.

But Gilchrist's 4:32.7 was 9.6 seconds slower than the third-placed Australian.

Linda Ludgrove, 15, a London schoolgirl, captured the English swimming gold medal in the 110-yard women's backstroke. Sara Barber of Brantford was sixth, nearly two seconds off the winning time. Julian Carroll gave Australia its second swimming gold in the men's 220-yard backstroke—an inaugural event at the Games.

In preliminary swimming heats, Canada placed finalists in the men's and women's 110-yard breaststroke.

Steve Rabinovitch of Montreal won his heat in the men's even with the second-fastest time of the day and Alison Gledhill, Hudson Heights, Que., squeezed into the women's final when she finished third in her heat.

Canadian Divers Not As Sharp

Olympics, won the 440-yard freestyle in four minutes, 20 seconds and broke his own Games record by five seconds. But the time fell short of John Konrad's world mark of 4:15.9.

Alan Wood and Bob Windy completed the 1-2-3 Australian sweep. Their times were 4:22.5 and 4:23.1.

Rose, who won by nearly eight feet after taking the lead at the start of the second 220 yards, said afterward he wasn't out to break Konrad's mark because he knew his only opposition would come from his two teammates.

Miss Ludgrove outduelled Pam Sergeant of Australia winning the 110 backstroke in 1:11.1. Miss Sergeant, the record holder with 1:10.8 was second in 1:11.5 and Sylvia Lewis of England was third in 1:12.2. Miss Barber's time was 1:13.1.

Touch of Drama As Match Drawn

BRISBANE, Australia (Reuters)—Tumbling wickets in the last two hours brought a touch of drama to the match here today between Queensland and the touring English Marylebone Cricket Club team.

The match was drawn, with Queensland, which had started its second innings needing 143 to make the touring team-bat again, losing seven wickets for 94 second innings.

MCC captain Ted Dexter had a spell of four wickets for one run in 13 balls which sent the state team slumping to 73 for five. Then, in a dramatic final over, Tom Graveney, who rarely bowls, took two wickets with his leg-breaks.

Ken Barrington led the way with an undefeated 183 when MCC, resuming at 373 for five, took its total to 581 for six before Dexter declared.

No Moss Grows On Indian Jack

MONTREAL (UPI)—Indian Jack Jacobs, one-time star quarterback in both U.S. and Canadian football, Monday resigned as assistant coach of Montreal Alouettes.

The former Oklahoma A & M great quit after two years working under head coach and general manager Perry Moss. Jacobs also quit the A's last year, but was talked into returning a few hours later.

West Decisions East On Dream Grid Team

EARL LUNS福德... Calgary contribution

HAL PATTERSON... one for East

By WILF GRUBSON
(Canadian Press Copyright)

TORONTO (CP)—The West, nearly supreme rulers of Canadian professional football for the last eight years with six Grey Cup victories, today decisively outclassed the East in selections for the first Canadian Press all-Canada all-star team.

The choice of 15 western players against nine from eastern clubs for the 24 positions on the offensive and defensive squads reflected the resurgence of the West as a football power since 1954 and its superiority, in particular, this year—the second season of the Canadian Football League's partial interlocking East-West schedule.

The 54 selectors—evenly divided between the West and East—picked eight western players for the offensive team and seven for the defensive squad. The East placed four men on offence and five on defence.

This year the West won 12 of 20 interlocking games, lost seven and tied one. Last year the East had the edge with 11 wins, seven losses and two ties.

Balloting for the all-star team was conducted by the Football Reporters of Canada.

OFFENSIVE TEAM
Half—George Dixon, Montreal; Half—Leo Lewis, Winnipeg; Half—Earl Lunsford, Calgary; Half—Ray Purdin, Sask. Quarter—Eagle Day, Calgary; Centre—Neil Hahlg, Sask. Guard—Tony Palamowski, Calgary; Guard—Gerry Patrick, Toronto; Tackle—Frank Rigney, Winnipeg; Tackle—Bruce Nagurski, Hamilton; End—Tommy Joe Coffey, Edmonton

DEFENSIVE TEAM
Half—Harvey Wylie, Calgary; Half—Jim McIntyre, Toronto; Half—Don Sutherland, Hamilton; Corner—Thacker—Jim Conroy, Ottawa; Corner—Thacker—Gord Rowland, Wpg.; Inside—Thacker—Tom Brown, B.C.; Tackle—Thacker—Wayne Harris, Calgary; Middle guard—Kaye Vaughan, Ottawa; Tackle—Don Luzzi, Calgary; Tackle—John Barrow, Hamilton; End—Herb Gray, Winnipeg; End—Garner Ekstrand, Sask.

There were no unanimous choices. George Dixon, Montreal's spectacular running ace, came closest with his selection by all but one vote.

BROWN MAKES IT

Defensive halfback Harvey Wylie of Calgary Stampeders, nominated by the West as the outstanding Canadian in the country, was picked by all but three selectors. The veteran, who played in the United States with Montana State College before joining the Stampeders was a unanimous choice on CP's Western Conference all-star team.

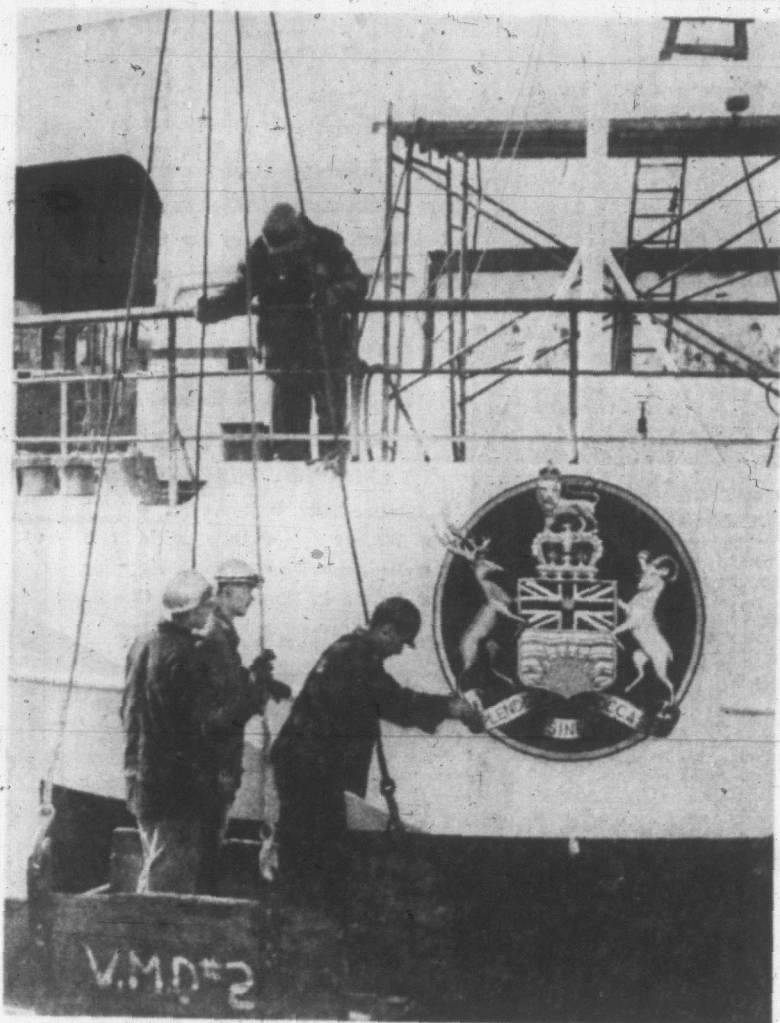

Only four Canadians made the team—one on offence, guard Tony Palajowski of Calgary, and three on defence, Wylie and corner linebacks Jim Conroy of Ottawa and Gord Rowland of Winnipeg. Palajowski was voted the outstanding Canadian player in the country last year.

Three westerners were picked for the four-man line-backing corps—Winnipeg's Rowland, a corner man, and inside linebackers Tom Brown of B.C. Lions and Wayne Harris of Calgary—the West's nominee as this season's outstanding lineman in the country.

Probe Urged Into B.C. Labor Unrest

VANCOUVER (CP) — Regional president J.A. Moore of the International Woodworkers of America (IWA) today called on the government to undertake an impartial investigation to bring management and labor together. (See also Page 17.)

Speaking of recent labor disturbances, he said the present conflict basically is not political, but economic.

"In comparable situations of such gravity, it is customary for governments to institute inquiries of judicial nature and provide a public hearing for all parties involved."

Mr. Moore said the present situation developed because of the actions of employers in a series of relatively small strikes.

"These actions made it evident to the trade unions that they are required to defend their interests against concerted attack by employers supported by employers' organizations, such as the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and various boards of trade."

U.S. Tests Continue

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States will continue underground nuclear testing but the Soviet Union appears to have brought its latest test series to a halt, the Atomic Energy Commission said today.

TORONTO (CP) — Medical health insurance legislation, a portable pensions bill and establishment of a provincial economic development agency were among measures promised by the Ontario government at the opening of the 26th legislature today.

The 7,500-word speech from the throne, read by Lieutenant-Governor J. Kellner MacKay, said the Progressive Conservative government "endorses the principle of medical health insurance." Legislation would be introduced "which will ensure that medical health insurance from insurers, by arrangement with the government, will be available to all our people, regardless of age or physical condition."

In addition, the government would accept responsibility for providing coverage for those persons who "may be deemed not to be able to provide for themselves."

Before any consideration can be given to benefits broader than those mentioned, the report of the federal royal commission on health "... must be examined."

Before the provisions of the medical insurance bill go into effect, the speech said, the legislation will be examined by a committee of medical, hospital, labor and other representatives. The committee would receive representations from any interested party.

Airliner Crashes; 97 Aboard

LIMA, Peru (AP) — A Brazilian jet liner with 97 persons aboard, crashed into mountains south of Lima today, the Peruvian aviation ministry reported. The chief of the aeronautics service said wreckage had been sighted near Ciudad de Dios, 20 miles south of Lima.

The plane was a Boeing 707 of Varig Airlines.

The 707 had radioed to Lima Airport a few minutes before it disappeared while coming in for landing.

The plane was bound from Brazil to Los Angeles, with intermediate stops scheduled in Peru, Colombia, Panama and Mexico. Varig said it carried 80 passengers, nine of them bound for Los Angeles. The $5,000,000 plane carried a crew of 17.

Among passengers reported by Varig to be aboard were Raul Cepero Bonilla, economic adviser to Cuban Premier Castro and president of the Cuban National Bank, and the Peruvian minister of agriculture, Jesus Melgar, with his wife. They had been attending a regional meeting of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization in Rio de Janeiro. Varig is one of South America's most progressive airlines, with a fleet of 707s. It operates flights between New York and Brazil, as well as in Brazil. In the last year or so it took over the international operations of the Brazilian Real Line and started flights to Los Angeles.

WANTED: COMMISSION FOR ZEBALLOS

(See also page 26)
ZEBALLOS (CP) — The village commission is assured of a chairman, but it's a little short of commissioners.

Stanley Jones was elected chairman by acclamation Monday, but there were no nominations for the three empty seats on the commission.

"We're not certain what we're going to do," Mrs. Van Koughnet, the village clerk, said today. "We'll just tell Victoria and let them handle it."

MAYOR WILSON

ROYAL COMMISSION

Stockpiling Under Fire

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Royal Canadian Navy has in its stockpiles enough wool and cotton suits of one size to last more than 1,000 years.

The Royal Canadian Air Force has stockpiled sufficient quantities of a certain type of electric light bulb to meet its requirements for 270 years.

The Canadian Army's inventory contains 197 years' supply of men's plain black cotton overalls, size one.

DEADLOCK ... AGAIN

GENEVA (AP) — The 17-nation disarmament conference was in a familiar deadlock today after resuming with expressions of hope that nuclear weapon tests would soon be banned. Neither the Western powers nor the Communists showed signs of giving ground on the inspection issue.

These staggering examples of excessive buying of military supplies are cited by the Glasco Royal Commission in its report on supporting services for government issued Tuesday.

It proposes that the federal government establish a central purchasing agency to economize on its ordering. Commercially-oriented crown corporations would be exempt. (See also page 13.)

The Royal Commission also recommended that the existing defence production department, now responsible for all of Canada's defence buying, be reamed the purchasing and supply department and be given the additional job of procurement for civilian departments and agencies.

BIG BUSINESS

Government buying is big business in Canada. It totals more than $1,000,000,000 a year, according to the commission.

"No other organization in Canada rivals the government in the wide range of its annual purchases, in the scale of its warehouse requirements, or in the value of its purchases," said the report.

The purchases vary from paper clips and pencils to icebreakers and jet aircraft, from missiles to school books and from gasoline to milk. Four-fifths of the total purchases are for the national defence department.

The commission discovered a general lack of uniformity in the government's purchasing policy. Costs were piled up because of unnecessary red tape. Patronage entered into purchasing decisions. Pressure was employed to influence.

Each Responsible For Own Share

By JOHN MIKA

Mayor R. B. Wilson today said the city is not seeking to pool its debt with Saanich but would like to see a study made on amalgamation.

He suggested the present debt could be "frozen" with each municipality responsible for its existing debt load.

This was the only one of the points that could be studied in a survey of possible amalgamation terms.

But he emphasized that the city is not sold on amalgamation yet and has only been authorized to investigate the question before a deciding vote is taken.

Mayor Wilson broke his silence on the Saanich amalgamation furor after being aroused by some anti-amalgamationist statements deriding the city.

DEBT 'SADDLED'

"Much has been made by some speakers of the possibility of Saanich being 'saddled' with Victoria's debt," he said.

"Possibility the most logical approach, to this would be for the present debts to be 'frozen' and attached where they are at the present time."

"Victoria would have no trouble in servicing and liquidating its present debt ... by 1975."

The mayor pointed out that when considering debt one also had to take account of assets and in this sphere Victoria has physical assets totalling $25,000,000 while Saanich has assets of only $8,700,000.

NOT PROVEN

"As far as I know, it has yet to be proven that amalgamation would be in the financial interest of the city of Victoria."

"The city's finances are in very good shape."

He pointed out since 1950 Victoria has reduced its debt by 38 per cent while Saanich has quadrupled its debt.

"In fact, if the present trends continue and we have every reason to believe they will, within five or six years the city's debt will be less than that of Saanich," the mayor said.

PARKS NEEDED

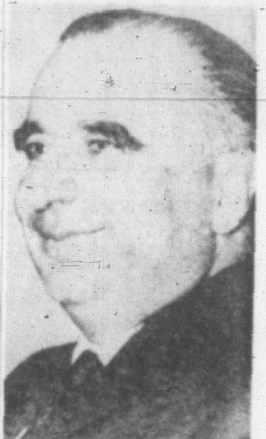

He pointed out that the city's outside parks, totalling thousands of acres, at Thetis, Elk and Beaver Lakes and Mount Douglas are essential to the whole community but probably never will be developed fully if there is not some form of amalgamation.

The mayor also noted that the Deutsch report predicted savings of hundreds of thousands of dollars over the years to taxpayers of both municipalities by elimination of duplicate services.

"As far as the city is concerned, it does not require a referendum at this time," he concluded.

"City council has unanimously agreed to a study of this question and amalgamation could not take place without."

REAPPOINTED

New Gaullist government commanding an absolute majority in the French Assembly will be headed by Premier Georges Pompidou, it was announced in Paris today. An official communique from the office of President de Gaulle announced the nomination of Pompidou, whose government fell last month.

'India's Eyes Opened' By Invasion

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Prime minister Nehru said tonight the Communist Chinese invasion of northern India opened India's eyes and the country will never again be caught in a trap.

Speaking at a civic reception for visiting West German President Lübke, Nehru strongly indicated India would turn down Chinese peace proposals.

He said India must be prepared for a long struggle and might have to learn new fighting techniques.

"But there can be no question of our tolerating this aggression or being bowed down by China," he said.

"Earlier, an external affairs spokesman, said China's answer to an Indian request for clarification of cease-fire proposals had been received and was being studied."

India had said some of the proposals were obscure.

Mac, JFK Set Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House announced today that President Kennedy and British Prime Minister Macmillan will meet in the Bahamas Dec. 19 and 20 for a review of world problems.

OTTAWA AWARDS THEM ON BASIS OF RANK

Telephone Status Symbol

OTTAWA (CP) — Add the telephone to the growing list of status symbols.

The Glasco royal commission on government organization reported today that phones are being allocated in the federal civil service on the basis of rank and arbitrary rules, instead of need.

Said the commissioners: "Instead of regarding the telephone as an efficient tool to be placed in the hands of the worker who needs it, it is still in government circles regarded somewhat as a slightly extravagant status symbol — the sort of attitude which would award the shovel to the foreman and leave the laborers to dig with their hands."

The report also said that existing standards of equipment and service in federal departments and agencies are "seriously deficient."

A government private line connects officials in Ottawa, Montreal and Toronto. But it takes so long to place a call on the line that urgent calls commonly are placed on commercial lines.

In one building — not identified.

fied in the report — federal offices operated 13 separate switchboards until, on one department's recent initiative, they were consolidated. Initiative of this sort was described by the commissioners as exceptional.

Centennial Flashback ...

THIS DAY IN VICTORIA - 1862

NOVEMBER 27

The steamer Thames, which was moored so long beside the Beaver, steamed up the arm today so she would not impede the flow of harbor traffic. She is now moored across from Mr. Traber's shipyard.

The Russian schooner Dove, which moored outside the harbor a few days ago, was towed in today by the Emily Harris and moored just below the Hudson's Bay Company's wharf. Her cargo consists mainly of rice, coffee and tea.

The body of an Indian was found this morning lying behind the iron church. Death was caused by small-pox. The body will be interred by proper authorities.

A fight occurred on Humboldt Street last night and the gentleman who got the worst of it was at the magistrate's office this morning to obtain a summons for his antagonist.

BOY FINDS DOLLAR BILL — DOLLAR BILL FINDS FUND

Six-year-old Brent Foxall became rich unexpectedly the other day. He found a $1 bill on his way home from school.

But his mother, Mrs. Ronald Foxall, did not want him to keep the money. She suggested he give it to the Times appeal for "Friendship Dollars for India."

"He thought that was a good idea," So when his older sister Wendy, seven, came home, he got her to write a letter for him to the Times. Here it is:

"To the children of India, I found $1 on the way home from school, and we would like to give it to you for food. Have a Merry Christmas."

"Love, Brent Foxall." Then, says Mrs. Foxall, her suggestion snowballed. Wendy wanted to give her weekly allowance to the appeal also. So she added to the letter "He is from my sister Wendy."

Four-year-old Matthew decided to kick in too. It was recorded in the letter also. "Two cents from Matt."

The letter, together with the money stuck with Scotch tape to a piece of cardboard, arrived at the Times today.

It is one of many small donations rolling in in response to the Times appeal.
